Not Patty or Emily, just two frightened women

False alarm adds light touch to grim search for SLA

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Gerri, an Australia-born secretary, and Joan, a medical technologist, were watching television in their modest bungalow late Thursday night when the first police car took up station outside to make sure they could not escape.

Gerri and Joan, both 27, had just been mistaken for Emily Harris and Patricia Hearst.

An anonymous telephone call to Los Angeles police or the FBI had reported the presence of the two women in the house behind another home on Carleton Way, a neighborhood of low-rent houses on the eastern edge of Hollywood.

At the Hollywood Division station, men with shotguns were loading into cars to follow up yet one more tip in one of the most intensive criminal hunts in California history. There had been blind leads before that led nowhere. And then there was also the tip from a 53-year-old woman last Friday that led to the biggest gun battle in the department's history. As they loaded into the cars, the police did not know that in the rear bungalow it was just Gerri and Joan, and all they were up to was going to bed.

Through the night men unobtrusively took up positions around the bungalow, in the streets on eitherside. Newsmen began gathering at the Hollywood station. Word got out that "something big" was brewing. The radio channels came alive with talk as more and more men filtered into position.

As the first light broke over the Hollywood Hills, an officer in charge of the operation telephoned the front house. The call was answered by Jack Agopin, 42, a grocer. He was told that his house was surrounded and the police wanted to know who those two women were in the rear.

Additional story, A-2

"I told them they had to be pulling my leg," said Agopin. "I didn't think they were the police."

Back at the station, one officer turned to another. "He won't believe we're really the police," he said.

That was when the Hollywood Division station decided to call the rear house to see if Patricia Hearst would answer.

"Wow! Only in Hollywood," a reporter listening in exclaimed.

The phone rang in the bungalow and Gerri, dragged out of a sleep, answered it. "This is the Los Angeles Police Department. We would like you women to identity yourselves."

As Gerri said later, "I couldn't believe it. I couldn't imagine what was going on." Outside in the street there were more than 60 officers, and the tension was rising.

The officer at the other end of the line earnestly explained that he really was with the police, and this was a very serious matter, and their house was surrounded by armed officers. If they did not believe him, he said, would they please call the operator and ask to be connected with the police. They would find that he was right back on the other end of the line again.

"I was terrified," said Joan. "We called back and he was right. My God, it really is the police and they really do have us surrounded. They wanted to know if we could be Miss Hearst and Mrs. Harris."

"We said we weren't," Gerri said.

Back at the station house, the officer in charge made a decision. "Turn on all the lights in the house," he said. "Walk out the front door, stand on the porch, and a police cruiser will approach you. Leave the phone off the hook so we can hear you. Let the officer inside to search the house."

"We were really scared when we went out the door," said Gerri. "I was beginning to wonder if I should go home to Australia." She's lived in the United States five years.

The nose of the squad car rolled into view past the front house.

Back at the station house, newsmen and officers had already started laughing and joking. "The SLA would never have turned the lights on," said one reporter. "It can't be them," Over the open radio they could hear one officer reporting the progress as another entered the house and his voice came over the telephone.

"It's not them. Nobody here but honest citizens."

"I thought the police were just super," Gerri said. "I have no complaints about them at all.

"After all, we really could have been the SLA."

Jazz great Ellington dies at 75

NEW YORK (UPI) — Duke Ellington, the prolific and versatile composer-pianist who gave the world "Mood Indigo" and a variety of music ranging from jazz to opera, died today of lung cancer complicated by pneumonia. He was 75.

A statement issued jointly by the musician's family and physicians said Ellington died at 3:10 a.m. after having had "cancer involving both lungs and pneumonia."

DUKE ELLINGTON

Ellington entered the medical center's Harkness Pavilion last month, but his condition was described optimistically until last Wednesday when the onset of the pneumonia led doctor's to describe his condition as serious.

The statement said Ellington had undergone intensive radio and chemical therapy since he entered the facility at the end of March.

"He was heartened by the many messages he received from friends throughout the world," the statement said.

It also was announced that a Duke Ellington Memorial Fund would be established at the hospital for research in cancer.

Almost three generations knew Ellington as the tall, gracious man in the tuxedo, conducting his band from the keyboard of a grand piano; the man whose tunes like "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady" and "In My Solitude" are woven into millions of memories.

Ellington received virtually every honor that could come to a musician, topped off by the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, presented to him by President Nixon on Ellington's 70th birthday, April 29, 1969.

Warming trend

Mountain, desert and beach areas will have sunny and warm weather today through Monday for the Memorial Day weekend for those who like holiday excursions out-of-town.

But for Pomona Valley residents who will spend the holiday weekend at home, temperatures will be in the high 80s after morning cloudiness that will burn off in the mid-moring.

The weatherman has promised a warming trend that will begin today with an afternoon high of 84 degrees and Saturday of 88 degrees.

Judge dismisses all defense motions

'Go' ordered in Ellsberg trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge today dismissed all defense motions on the grounds of pre-trial publicity and national security and ordered the trial of the Ellsberg break-in defendants to begin as scheduled June 17.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said President Nixon lacked the authority to order the break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding in the name of national security and gave no specific instructions for it.

Lawyers for former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson and three others asked that the charges be dismissed or at least the trial be delayed or moved to another section of the country. Gesell turned down all those motions and ordered it to begin in his court June 17.

Gesell in a 10-page memo denied the motion for dismissal on the grounds the trial could expose national security information.

He said the facts presented led him to conclude "the President not only lacks the authority to authorize the Fielding break-in but also that he did not in fact give any specific directive permitting national security break-ins, let alone this particular intrusion.

"The President has repeatedly and publicly denied prior knowledge or authorization of the Fielding break-in, and the available transcripts of the confidential tape recordings support that claim."

Regarding the claim that publicity in the case would prejudice a jury, Gesell said he would ask lawyers to submit questions for potential jury members, he would question them about publicity, he would provide extra pre-emptory challenges to both sides, and he would sequester the jury.

"This is a case where it cannot be fairly said the media has generated the publicity," Gesell said. "The publicity has been generated by proper congressional activity and activity by the President, also proper. The special prosecutor has not been shown to have acted irresponsibly in regard to publicity matters."

Ehrlichman and Colson were charged as alleged planners of the break-in of the Beverly Hills office of Fielding, psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

The burglary took place the weekend of Labor Day, 1971, with E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy allegedly in charge of the team. The other defendants are Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez.

Home blast may not have been accident

SAN DIMAS—Sheriff's arson detail investigators revealed today that a fire had been set inside the small, frame house at 1117 Wehner Lane here which may have touched off the blast which demolished the building Wednesday, critically burning a young man inside.

Deputy Jack Cather said the explosion, which did $10,000 damage and left only two walls of the house standing, also may have been caused by gas fumes reaching a pilot light. A criminal complaint will be sought if the blast is found to have been anything, but an accident, he said.

Earlier, a spokesman for the Southern California Gas Co. said that investigation of the scene indicated that gas had leaked into the house during the night or early-morning hours and that the explosion had not been an accident. He did not elaborate.

While the investigation continued, the victim, Helaman Paul Hintz, 20, had improved in the burn ward of County-USC Medical Center. His condition there today was reported still serious, however.

Meanwhile, homicide detectives said today there are no new developments to report in the death last Tuesday at the Wehner Lane house of 3-year-old Daniel Garza. The boy suddenly lapsed into unconsciousness that day and could not be revived by firemen.

The child's death had not been revealed publicly by sheriff's investigators and it wasn't until after the explosion the next day that the fact the boy had died leaked out.

An autopsy revealed that Daniel died as the result of "blunt force trauma," or injuries suffered in an as yet unexplained manner. Homicide detectives are investigating the possibility of foul play, but declined to speculate about any suspected connection between the death and Wednesday's explosion.

Hintz had been living in the house on Wehner Lane with Mrs. Gale Garza and her three young sons, authorities said. He was the only one home when the place blew up.

IN HEATED DEBATE

Nixon gets Brezhnev note--it's secret

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon got a personal message Thursday from Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, but the White House is keeping the contents secret —indicating a possible connection with the summit conference planned in Moscow later next month.

Brezhnev's message was delivered by B.N. Ponomarov, head of an eight-member delegation of Soviet parliamentarians who spent 45 minutes talking with the President in his Oval Office. Also present at the meeting was Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to the United States.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Ponomarov gave the message to Nixon at a separate 20-minute session alone with the President, but Ziegler declined to give any clue to the contents on grounds that the message was "personal and private."

Nixon is said to be planning to go to Moscow about June 21st to begin his third round of summit talks with Brezhnev in as many years, but the White House has not provided any firm information about the trip yet, and Nixon has been urged by some members of Congress to put off the visit until the impeachment proceedings are completed.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, speaking to reporters while Nixon and the Russians were conferring Thursday, said he saw no reason to think the President would be in a weak negotiating position if he meets Brezhnev while the House impeachment proceedings are still under way. For one thing, he said, members of Congress still are giving Nixon "strong bipartisian support for his foreign policy and peace making efforts."

Beyond that, Warren said, "We don't conduct foreign policy on the basis of domestic debate." He added that Nixon has many important issues to discuss with Brezhnev and has given no thought to cancelling plans for the summit.

During his meeting with the Soviet visitors, Nixon alluded to the forthcoming talks with Brezhnev and said he hoped they would produce progress on several subjects under negotiation plus continued improvement of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Troops poised

Bloodbath feared in N. Ireland

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Labor government is poised to send in troops to break the paralyzing Northern Ireland strike. But it still hesitates before giving the final order.

It fears that ordering in troops to try to run power plants may trigger the final confrontation between the British army and militant Protestants —something both the London and Belfast governments dread.

"If troops move in and take over the essential services, there is likely to be a street war on a scale Ulster has never known," said The Sun of London.

The London Daily Mail said, "If soldiers are used to break the strike paralysis by moving oil, there could be a total power station walkout which would leave the army no choice but to move in there, too."

The government is under heavy pressure to act —and to act fast —to break the Protestant militant revolt.

Gerry Fitt, head of the Roman Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party and deputy chief minister in the Northern Ireland coalition Executive, said:

"Ulster Secretary Merlyn Rees must act now. This country is being held to ransom by a bunch of thugs and fascists."

But if troops do move in, the militant Protestants have warned they will hit back.

Glen Barr, a leader of the militants and a member of Northern Ireland's provincial assembly, threatened: "If troops are used, there will be a bloodbath."

Brother of DeFreeze vows, 'I will carry on'

By United Press International

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Delano DeFreeze pledged to take up his fallen brother's cause Thursday after the Symbionese Liberation Army's "General Field Marshal Cinque," Donald DeFreeze, was buried in Cleveland.

"The SLA is not dead," he said in a calm, soft-spoken voice. "I'm already carrying on my brother's banner."

Donald, 30, died a week ago today in a two-hour gunbattle with Los Angeles police and FBI agents to climax a three-month hunt for the alleged kidnapers of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. The Los Angeles coroner said evidence indicates the wound was self-inflicted.

"I have something to fulfill," added DeFreeze, 28, surrounded by "Black Revolution Guards" at the cemetery. "We must be willing to die for our cause and that cause is the people — anybody —just people.

"The cause —to change the system," Delano said. "It's not working for us.

During the islamic services at the House of Wills Funeral Home, Delano offered the eulogy saying "We came here to bury our brother who fell for our nation.

"He lived for the people. He fell for the people," Delano told the congregation of 500 persons.

The closed casket was guarded by members of the "Black Revolution Guards" as about 1,000 persons walked through the chapel to view it before the service. Standing in front of the casket was a wreath of red and green carnations sent to "Field Marshal Cinque."

In San Francisco, stressing the dangers of being a fugitive, two teen-aged sisters of Patricia Hearst have pleaded with her to surrender because "we really love you."

Ann Hearst, 18, and her sister, Victoria, 17, appealed Thursday in taped messages to Miss Hearst to end an ordeal which began Feb. 4 when the Symbionese Liberation Army kidnaped her from a Berkeley apartment.

"The police and the FBI aren't all that sympathetic anymore," Vicki said. "I mean they've taken a lot of trash from these guys and I just don't think they're going to sit around and take much more of it."

And Anne said, "I just want to tell you that we really love you."

There were these other developments Thursday:

—Los Angeles police said two guns found in the charred debris of the SLA's hideout which was attacked in a blazing gunbattle were linked with two young men held on suspicion of killing Oakland School Superintendent Marcus A. Foster last November.

—FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley defended the police assault on the Los Angeles hideout. "When they chose to fire, the decision became theirs at that point," he said in Washington.

—Former U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole criticized Los Angeles District Attorney Joseph Busch for statements branding Patricia as a criminal. He said the Hearst family was outraged by his remarks.

Brown, Moretti in rough and tumble shouting match

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A dramatic, rough and tumble confrontation between Bob Moretti and Edmund G. Brown Jr. shook the Democratic gubernatorial campaign today with the primary election only 11 days away.

Brown, the reform-minded secretary of state, charged Assembly Speaker Moretti with being a latecomer to the effort to close tax loopholes and clean up political abuses.

"You have been up here for several years and I think you just got religion," said Brown, who once studied to be a priest.

Moretti, in an unexpected face-to-face encounter Thursday with the Democratic front-runner, countered that Brown was "lying about Moretti's position on aid to local schools.

"The amount of information that you know about around here could be written on the head of a needle," Moretti said.

Brown and Moretti, has been ranked No. 2 in public opinion polls on the race, both endorsed legalizing homosexuality and other sexual acts between consenting adults during their heated debate.

The event, one of the more dramatic in what has often been lackluster Democratic gubernatorial campaign, left strategists for Moretti and Brown musing over its effect on voters in the June 4 election.

One Brown aide commented Moretti's "browbeating" approach could misfire and repulse voters.

A Moretti supporter dismissed the reasoning, declaring citizens want a strong, forceful governor.

"Moretti's more of a rough and tumble guy. Maybe some of it came through," the aide said.

Both candidates shouted during the debate but Moretti was clearly the aggressor. The exchange however, showed few differences on the issues between the two.

Brown asserted that Moretti said the state's recently enacted property tax relief-school aid law would comply with the landmark serrano court decision.

It was then Moretti angrily replied, "That is a lie. That is an absolute, out-and-out flasehood."

Moretti portrayed Brown, son of the former governor, as coming from a "very protected kind of world" and was not familiar with the problems of the working man.

Brown retorted he has identified with civil rights and farmworkers movements — "persons whose struggles are greater than yours and mine."

And he said he swept floors and cleaned toilets while he was studying for the priesthood.

The debate began after Moretti and Brown scheduled back-to-back news conferences in the Capitol. Moretti remained after his concluded and immediately challenged Brown to a debate.

During his news conference, Moretti criticized Brown for "running" from a proposed televised debate.

Brown attacked lobbyists' spending and charged that a "system that permits $1 million a year to be spent on wining and dining elected officials is wrong."

Schools seeking $2 million grant

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Pomona school board today authorized Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz to apply for $2.2 million in federal funds to improve reading and math programs at both elementary and secondary schools next year.

The funding, through the Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) hinges on a requirement that there be no less than 15 per minority teaching staff at any school in the Pomona district, where enrollment is 20,602 — 50.77 per cent Caucasian and 49.23 per cent minority.

This is the first time Pomona schools have ever applied for ESAA funds. Wentz said the application had been in the works several months and had had several setbacks. A U.S. Court of Appeals once ruled a waiver invalid. The application could be funded in full, or in part, Wentz pointed out.

"Compliance with the new guidelines will require the internal transfer of some of our teaching staff for a more equitable balance in each individual school, and this would have to be accomplished by September," said Wentz.

He estimated that between 20 and 25 teachers, mostly Caucasian, would be affected by the transfer procedure. He said Office of Civil Rights said the district could request an exemption for the federally funded bilingual-bicultural schools so their teaching staffs would be excluded from transfer.

"It is safe to say," said Wentz, "that we will not move those teachers who are part of a bilingual program." These, to a large extent, are Spanish-surnamed teachers who speak, read and write Spanish as well as English.

Wentz said the ESAA funds would create 25 full-time and several part-time positions which, added to the nine new positions created through the bilingual-bicultural program and five pending, would produce some 50 new staff positions for next year.

"Also, at the present time we have 15 vacancies at the elementary level and 13 at the secondary level. We will hire as many qualified minority teachers as we can find for these positions."

Three members of the black community, John Owsley, Mrs. Gertha Speigner and Ken Stewart, asked what affect the transfers would have on the predominately black schools, specifically North San Antonio Elementary School.

"My great concern," said Mrs. Speigner, "is the ability of a teacher to relate to a child." Owsley said parents had worked very hard to get good black teachers at North San Antonio and they would not like to see their teachers transferred out. "We want super teachers at North San Antonio," he said.

Dr. James Bell, chairman of the school board, said administrators would be very careful in deciding transfers, weigh priorities and in hiring, attempt to hire minorities.

"There are a lot of things still left undone," said Bell, "but none of this can come about if we don't get the funding."

If funding is obtained it would have "significant impact" on math and reading programs at Allison, Harrison, Kellogg, and San Jose elementary schools — Fremont, Marshall, Palomares and Simons junior high schools and Ganesha, Garey, Pomona and Park Avenue high schools, Wentz said.

The district employes 1,043 certificated people. Of this total 140 are black, 7 are Oriental, 57 are Spanish surnamed and 839 are Caucasian.

At the school board meeting today, Wentz distributed an ethnic survey by minority teachers were required. Those school, which indicated where more schools are Alcott (3), Allison (1), Diamond Point (4), Golden Springs (1), Harrison (1), Kingsley (1), Montvue (2), Philadelphia (3), Roosevelt (1) and Westmont (1), and Emerson Junior High, (2).

Schools with a more than required number of minority teachers are Hamilton (3), Lexington (5), North San Antonio (10), Fremont Junior High (7), Marshall (3), and Garey High (1).

Court rules Nixon has right to withhold 5 tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the same appeals court where he once failed to keep several secret tapes away from a grand jury, President Nixon Thursday won the right to keep five recordings out of the hands of the Senate Watergate committee.

The Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled 7-0 Thursday that the committee, which has fought to get the tapes since last July, is not entitled to the evidence.

The ruling was a major victory for the President, who has contended he cannot be forced to breach the confidentiality of his office by surrendering taped discussions with his highest aides. But the victory was tempered by a hint from the court it might not rule the same way in the future.

"There is a clear difference between Congress's legislative tasks and the responsibility of a grand jury, or any institution engaged in like functions," the court said in an opinion written by Chief Judge David Bazelon.

That phrase could turn out to be crucial to White House hopes of overturning a lower court order to comply with a subpoena from Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski for additional evidence to be used at the cover-up trial of seven former Nixon aides.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who issued that order Monday, gave Nixon's lawyers until 4 p.m. EDT today to appeal if they wished. The White House said it would.

The appeals court last fall upheld Sirica's order that Nixon must comply with a prosecution subpoena for nine presidential tapes. After vowing not to and then firing Archibald Cox for pursuing the evidence, the President did give up the tapes to the grand jury.

In its opinion Thursday, the court said Cox had proved a compelling public need for the tapes that outweighed claims of presidential confidentiality, but it said the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities had failed to do so in its suit.

It also said the committee, chaired by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., has been overshadowed by the impeachment inquiry underway in the House Judiciary Commitee.

Ayala and Ralph debate lottery

POMONA — Sharply differing views on the question of a state lottery were voiced Thursday in a debate by Assemblyman Leon Ralph, D-55th Dist., and Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, D-20th Dist.

Speaking at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Ralph, author of a bill to set up a lottery, said that Californians are sending millions of dollars each week to lotteries in other states. If spent here, it could be used to finance badly needed programs in California, he said.

Ayala contended that the state's yield would bring an increase of only 3 per cent in the state's revenue. The money spent on this form of gambling, he said, would really be a regressive tax, falling most heavily on the poor.

Both bolstered their arguments with data from numerous studies of lotteries in Eastern states. Ralph claimed that California could have a lottery that would be an improvement over those elsewhere. He predicted that all states would eventually have lotteries to protect themselves from the inroads of out-of-state lotteries.

Pomonan knifed in hallway scuffle

POMONA — A 25-year-old Pomona man was reported in fair condition today at County-USC Medical Center where he was being treated for knife wounds suffered here Thursday.

Jerry F. Carlson, 1347 Fremont St., was stabbed in the chest and back during a scuffle in the hallway of an apartment building at 585 N. Dudley St. shortly before 2 a.m., police said.

Investigators said that events leading to the stabbing were unclear and the case is still being investigated.

Second billing

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) — Danny Kaye, the American comedian, took second billing Thursday to Prince Charles at a meeting of the Variety Club of Great Britain. Charles spoke first, but he indicated he and Kaye already had had words.

"He's already been extremely rude, telling me: 'Oh, you have to use speech notes,'" the prince quipped.

Now a baroness

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson today gave his controversial secretary Marcia Williams the highest honor he can bestow — a life peerage as a baroness.

The peerage for the 41-year-old Mrs. Williams, Wilson's personal and political secretary for 20 years, was among 15 announced for three women and 12 men in today's London Gazette.

Mrs. Williams, known as a member of his "kitchen cabinet," has for years been the target of criticism from some members of Wilson's Labor party who say she exercises too much influence.

Threat from Soviet

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Gov. Marvin Mandel, talking by satellite from Shanghai, where he was visiting with four other governors, Thursday said the Chinese seem obsessed by the idea of masses of Russians along their border.

"The 'polar bear of the North' is not good and they talk about it," he told press secretary Frank Defilippo. "The feeling here is that they are the enemy. Relations between those two are at a very low level at this point."

The other governors are Dan Evans of Washington, Arch Moore of West Virginia, Robert Ray of Iowa, and Calvin Rampton of Utah.

"People are very friendly wherever we go," Mandel said. "Some people have never seen Westerners, as they call us. The crowds are enormous."

Sinatra a grandad

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Singer Nancy Sinatra has given birth to a daughter, making Frank Sinatra a grandfather for the first time, it was reported Thursday.

The child, weighing 8 pounds, 14 ounces, was born in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. Miss Sinatra and her husband, television drector Hugh Lambert, said it will be named Angela Jennifer.

Indicted in theft

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Patty Duke's two business managers have been indicted on charges of stealing $34,000 of her money.

The indictments were handed down against Irwin Brownstein, 33, and Joseph P. Stitch, 34, charging they diverted the money from her business account to their own use between October, 1970 and January, 1972.

Brownstein was arrested Wednesday, freed on bond and is to be arraigned May 30. Stitch lives in New York City and has not yet been arrested, police said Thursday. The alleged theft was said to be discovered by Miss Duke's husband, actor John Astin.

Burton discharged

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Burton was discharged Wednesday from the hospital where he was being treated when the break-up of his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor was announced.

The Welsh actor spent 6-½ weeks in St. John's Hospital for treatment of what the hospital and his spokesman said was a bronchial infection and a hand injury suffered while filming a fight scene in "The Klansman."

Miss Taylor, who reportedly left the film set in a huff earlier because of Burton's attentions to two young local women, made no move to visit him when she returned from a Hawaiian vacation.

Parents accused

Insulin-denied death trial opens

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI) — Lawrence Parker, on trial for manslaughter in the death of his 11-year-old diabetic son, denied the boy insulin because he believed symptoms of diabetes were a "lie of the devil," a prosecuting attorney said Thursday.

The manslaughter and child abuse trial of Parker, 34, and his wife, Alice, 29, both of Barstow, Calif., began in San Bernardino Superior Court Thursday with opening statements by deputy district attorney Lou Glazier.

The Parkers are accused of denying their son, Wesley, further insulin shots because they believed he was cured by the prayers and anointments of members of their church. The boy died Aug. 22.

Glazier, summarizing the prosecution's case against the Parkers, said they believed their son was cured at a service of the First Assembly of God church in Barstow.

The Parkers felt the service drove "demons" out of the boy's body which had been causing the diabetes, Glazier told the court. After the service, the Parkers refused to give the boy further insulin, according to Glazier.

Law officers put everything together

CUCAMONGA — Some weeks police find everything naturally falls together to break a case.

This was just such a week for the West End Sheriff's Department when detectives arrested two men and a 17-year-old youth on suspicion of burglary and grand theft and recovered four stolen motorcycles.

It began Tuesday when Frank Gambetty, owner of J and F Auto Sales, 8133 Foothill Blvd., Cucamonga, reported that burglars had broken into his garage and stolen four motorcycles.

At 4:30 p.m. Wednesday sheriff's detectives got their first break when Montclair police stopped a car with a motorcycle in the trunk. The Montclair officers made a registration check and found the motorcycle had been stolen. Montclair police asked the youth where he got the motorcycle. He said he was taking it to his house to repair it for two friends.

The youths' information led West End sheriff's deputies to the two other youths who said they had found the motorcycle leaning against the wall of the Magic Lamp Restaurant near the J and F Sales lot. The youths said when no one claimed the bike, they took it home.

Meanwhile, at the same time, Ron Sommerhouse, an Upland police officer, Deputy Richard Peterson and a member of the regional auto theft task force were investigating another case of auto theft on Avalon Court in Alta Loma when a California Highway Patrol officer drove up and asked them if they had seen someone "hot-rodding" a motorcycle on the block.

The three investigators said they saw the motorcyclist in question pull into a garage several houses down at 8521 Avalon Court. The three investigators and the highway patrolmen went to the house and contacted the owner. Inside the garage of the house they found two motorcycles — both stolen from J and F Auto Sales.

Finally on Thursday the last stolen motorcycle was recovered in an orange grove in Cucamonga.

The result of the investigations and coincidences were the arrest of Robert Owen Wilde, 18, of 8460 Monte Vista Ave., Alta Loma; Dana Hames, 20, of 7051 Cameo St., Alta Loma; and a 17-year-old Alta Loma youth. The trio were booked in the West End jail on suspicion of burglary and grand theft.

POMONA — A minister and a high school student who pulled an injured motorist from under his burning car Feb. 7 said their actions were "sheer instinct."

The Rev. Alfred Norris Jr., pastor of the First Baptist Church in Duarte, and David Segura, 17, a junior at Ganesha High School, were honored Thursday in a Ganesha school assembly for their heroic actions.

Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander of the California Highway Patrol, presented each with certificates of commendation signed by Walter Pudinski, CHP commissioner.

They were credited with saving the life of Jimmy Hollinger, 31, of Los Angeles who had been ejected from his car on the San Bernardino Freeway near Ganesha Boulevard.

He was driving a small car east on the freeway when it hit a center divider fence. The vehicle dragged the driver to an outside travel lane where he lay unconscious on the roadway. Another motorist then stopped his auto to protect the injured man from freeway traffic and his vehicle was struck.

The impact knocked his car forward and over Hollinger. The vehicle then burst into flames.

Mr. Norris said he was taking a church member to Cal Poly when he came upon the accident scene. About 25 persons were standing and watching the car burn.

"I asked a man who was carrying a fire extinguisher if there was anyone inside the burning car," said Mr. Norris. "He said there was but the man was dead.

Mr. Norris said he decided to try and rescue the motorist. "I acted just on sheer instinct," he recalled.

CITED FOR HEROISM — David Segura, 17, a Ganesha High School student, and the Rev. Alfred Norris Jr., pastor of the First Baptist Church in Duarte, are presented certificates of commendation from Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander of the California Highway Patrol, for carrying an injured man from a burning car on the San Bernardino Freeway. Members of their families watch the presentation. The certificates were awarded during a Ganesha High School assembly where Segura received a standing ovation.

Segura, of 2293 Farringdon Ave., said he was watching television when he heard an explosion on the nearby freeway. "I jumped over the freeway fence with my father to investigate."

Segura said he didn't realize anyone was under the burning car until he looked down. and saw a pair of shoes. "I then met Rev. Norris and we worked together in pulling the injured man free."

Hollinger was carried to the side of the freeway where the fresh air seemed to stir him. He didn't regain consciousness, however, until after he was admitted to the Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The injured motorist, who suffered chest injuries and severe burns, remained in the intensive care unit for several days. He was later transferred to a Los Angeles hospital.

Both Mr. Norris and Segura noted that about 25 to 30 persons were standing on the freeway watching the car burn. Several were trying to direct traffic around the wrecked vehicles.

Some may have been concerned about their own safety in fear the car's gasoline tank would explode, said Mr. Norris.

"But the fire was in the front end, away from the tank," he reported.

Segura said he was determined that the injured man wasn't going to burn in the fire.

Both rescuers said it "got hot" when they were pulling the injured man away from the car. But neither was burned.

In presenting the certificates, Capt. Jones said that Hollinger wouldn't be alive today if it hadn't been for their actions.

The comfendation states in part: "You have shown great concern for your fellow man and are a credit to your community. You are commended for this courageous act."

In addition to Thursday's presentation, Capt. Jones will present Mr. Norris the certificate Sunday at the Duarte church.

Among those watching the two honored at the school assembly were David's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mario Segura, and members of Mr. Norris' family, his wife, Jackie, and their four children, Felicia, Antoinette, Alfred III and Keith.

This is Mr. Norris' second commendation for heroism. He was previously commended for rescuing a baby from a burning home in Tennessee.

Glendoran in gun smuggling case convicted

GLENDORA — A Glendora man faces sentencing June 21 on his guilty plea to participation in a scheme to ship surplus military weapons to Mexico.

Jaime Barragan, 41, described as an associate of Joseph Schramm, 51-year-old Woodland Hills man who was convicted Thursday, pleaded guilty earlier to one count of conspiring to violate the 1968 Gun Control Act.

Schramm, North Hollywood surplus store manager, was convicted of the same offense Thursday in U.S. District Court. Both men face sentencing June 21.

Agents of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau of the Treasury Department said that Barragan and Schramm falsified purchase records to buy large quantities of military weapons that were eventually shipped to Sonora, Mexico.

A federal agent said, "A lot of these weapons are used as money to trade in the narcotics market. They're better than currency because they're stable and retain their value."

The agent revealed that his agency and U.S. Customs agents have begun a joint crackdown on illegal shipment of weapons to Mexico.

Convicted murderer may get new trial

ONTARIO — Harold Eugene Jackson, 36, of Ontario, convicted in 1971 of robbing and killing an Ontario motel owner may be granted a new trial in the West Valley Superior Court today.

Judge Clifton L. Allen Thursday heard arguments from Jackson's attorney, James McDaniels, asking for a new trial. In February, McDaniels argued, the Fourth District Court of Appeals reversed the Superior Court conviction of Jackson pointing out that the extra-judicial statements of two witnesses in Jackson's original trial undoubtedly had a substantial impact on the jury and contributed to the jury's verdict.

The Court of Appeal judges in a 2-1 decision suggested that the two prosecution witnesses implied that Jackson had confessed to the murder of motel owner John C. Andriolo, 79, of Ontario on Nov. 2, 1971. Andriolo was found bludgeoned to death in one of his motel rooms. He had been robbed of several hundred dollars, according to Ontario police.

The appeal court ruled that the admission of the witnesses' testimony about the alleged confessions may have been in error.

Judge Allen, after hearing the arguments, said he would take the motion for a new trial under submission until today.

Meanwhile Jackson remains in the West End jail after being transferred out of the California Institute for Men, where he had been serving his life sentence on the murder conviction.

City of Industry renewal hearings quiet down--airport plan missing

INDUSTRY — With controversial plans for an airport "pretty much dead," this city received little opposition Thursday to phases two and three of the redevelopment project.

After a pair of public hearings, both the City Council and Redevelopment Agency gave the go-ahead to the projects and approved environmental impact reports prepared by Ultrasystems, Inc., of Newport Beach.

City Atty. Graham Ritchie affirmed after the hearings that the hotly contested airport is a "dead" issue, and "is not a part of this redevelopment plan. It's conceivable that it could be reactivated but I doubt it, in view of the opposition."

"By the time it could be reactivated it would be too late anyway, because the land would be developed," he added.

The small commercial jetport, proposed as part of phase two of the project, would have been placed just west of Walnut Elementary School, near Lemon Avenue, south of Valley Boulevard. Phase two covers 130 acres bounded by Valley on the north, Pomona Freeway on the south, Sentous Avenue on the west and three-quarters of a mile east of Grand Avenue.

Although a standing-room-only crowd filled the small council chamber at City Hall, only two persons spoke in opposition to phase two.

Phil Anderson, president of the Rowland unified school board and a frequent critic of City of Industry, read a letter in which his board reaffirmed its stand against an airport. "We're trying to preclude them from going ahead with an airport in the future," he said later.

Ritchie responded by saying the airport definitely has been dropped from redevelopment plans.

Anderson also said the city was "abusing" the state redevelopment law which allows projects to correct "blighted" conditions.

"Not blighted"

"I maintain the project area is not blighted," he added, "and it should be tested in court. Here, you have the whole city falling into a redevelopment area, and you can't consider virgin land as blight. Redevelopment of vacant land is not what the redevelopment law is for."

Ritchie countered by saying that redeveloping vacant land is "precisely" what the law allows.

Edmund Biederman, general manager of the Walnut Valley Water District, expressed some fear that by freezing the tax rate, the city would infringe on his ability to furnish water and extend his system to customers in the future. (The redevelopment law allows cities to finance needed improvements with tax increments.)

Ritchie assured Biederman that if the project causes any loss of revenue, "We'll make it up to you." He added that City of Industry was also "concerned about water."

Basic purpose of the projects, said Ritchie, is to correct street access problems, poor drainage and scattered development, in order to entice new industires to the city. "We want to make it work out there."

There are no major capital improvement projects in phase two, but there are some important street projects, he said, including a Grand Avenue grade separation at the point where it crosses the railroad tracks.

Phase three of the project, which does not affect Walnut or Rowland Heights, covers 164 acres bounded by San Jose Flood Control channel on the north, Pomona Freeway on the south, San Gabriel River Freeway, west and Seventh Avenue on the east.

After the hearings Anderson held a press conference in which he continued his attack on the city, calling for a grand jury investigation into the procedure by which one company holds an exclusive franchise for trash collection here.

He charged Councilman Darius Johnson has a conflict of interest in that he owns the building where offices of the trash firm are located. Johnson has voted on motions to allow the exclusive franchise, even though he abstained once, Anderson claimed.

"My intent is to call for an investigation, and seek to invalidate votes that allowed the franchise," he said.

Youth held in bank robbery

PASADENA (UPI) — A teenage youth was held today on suspicion of robbing a bank of $897 and commandeering a 70-year-old woman's car.

Police said Chu Chu Vacara of British Honduras fled a Bank of America branch Thursday after handing a note to a teller saying he had a gun and a grenade and demanding money.

The youth, chased by two bank employes, allegedly took over a car driven by Viola Hegeman of Pasadena, who was stopped at a traffic light.

He surrendered when police, hailed by two men in a truck, gave chase.

Waiting for Supreme Court decision

Likes Missouri, would never come back--Finch

Although satisfaction and peace are not at hand yet, Dr. Bernard Finch has apparently found a new life and new friends in Missouri.

The former West Covina physician who sepnt 12 years in the California Institution for Men in Chino after conviction for the murder of his wife says he likes it where he is, and is not coming back to California even though he is embroiled in a court battle for his license.

"I love Missouri," Finch said at Eldorado Springs, Mo., where he is waiting the outcome of a battle to regain his license to practice. "I've got a lot of friends here. Not only here but all over the state. I want to spend the rest of my life here."

Whether Finch is reinstated as a physician is now up to the Missouri Supreme Court.

The Missouri Board of Registration for the Healing Arts is opposed to the reinstatement because it is "not suitable or appropriate to permit an individual who has brutally murdered his wife to reenter the practice of medicine."

But the Missouri Circuit Court said Finch was entitled to take the examination. Finch took the test and passed it, but still, the state board refused to grant him a license and took the case to the Supreme Court. hTe high court is expected to consider the case in the summer or fall.

Meanwhile, Finch continues to work as an X-ray technician at Eldorado Spring's Cedar County Hospital, hopeful that the Supreme Court will grant him the license he lost when he was convicted in Los Angeles of slaying his wife, Barbara Jean, so he could be the beneficiary of her insurance policy.

In prison 35 years, no trial

By RICHARD S. BOGGS

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Eloyd Mills was picked from a crowd, accused of a murder he did not commit and kept in the Oklahoma State Penitentiary for 35 years without a trial.

He was arrested after a woman was killed and her body was set on fire outside her home. Mills, 26 at the time, was standing near the body, an axe over his shoulder, and someone pointed at him.

"There he is, that's the one," the person shouted.

"I guess I was the youngest one there," Mills says today. "I was just a spectator. I was watching them standing around and then those police grabbed me."

Mills said the police beat a confession out of him and told him a life prison sentence was better than standing trial and risking the electric chair.

Court records show Mills was denied benefit of legal counsel until the 10th U.S. Court of Appeals in Denver remanded the case to the Western Oklahoma District Court last year for a hearing. On Jan. 30, U.S. District Judge Stephen S. Chandler ordered Mills released from the prison at McAlester.

Mills, now 61, said he hopes he can find work.

"But a convict my age doesn't have much of a chance, especially when you think about all the people out of work right now —younger men than me.

"I lost my wife and family — everything I had. My wife divorced me and my daughter has her own people now.

"I'm broke and didn't learn anything in prison except how to push a wheelbarrow. I'm in pitiful shape and can't find work."

For the last seven years, Mills worked on the prison's poultry farm. His job was to feed the chickens. He learned only a few months ago he was going to become a free man again. It happened April 19.

"They just dressed me out in a pair of khakis and a dirty old shirt and told me to get on the bus," he said. "They didn't even give me any clean underwear, no shoes and no hat.

"I want to live. They didn't show me nothing in all that time —35 years. I've got to live. I can't just come out and die. I want to be a citizen. I want to vote and be active. I'm no criminal. I never have been."

Actor ruled innocent of raping girl

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A Common Pleas Court judge found television actor Mel Stewart innocent of a rape charge Thursday in a case involving a 16-year-old girl.

The former Clevelander, who has appeared in the "All in the Family" series, was accused of raping the Cleveland girl after meeting her at Karamu House, the theater where he began his career. He waived his right to a jury trial.

The girl testified that Stewart, 45, took her to a house owned by his cousin and raped her in an upstairs bedroom after telling her that "having sex with him would make a woman out of me."

She said the rape occurred on Dec. 1, 1973 and Stewart called her on the telephone two days later to apologize.

Stewart's cousin, Edward Burnett, testified Wednesday that when he returned to his home on Dec. 1 he found Stewart and the girl "hugging and kissing."

Stewart's brother, Morris, 43, also testified as a defense witness. He said his brother came to his home after the alleged rape and asked him to drive him and the girl to her home.

"When we approached the girl's home she told me to stop the car," he said. "Both she and Mel got out of the car and when Mel re-entered the car she leaned in and gave him a kiss."

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge George W. White refused a motion from defense attorney Russell T. Adrine for dismissal of the charges before returning his verdict. The defense had maintained that the state failed to prove the charge of rape.

You're in for a shock; frying pans a hazard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The owners of 4 million electric frying pans are being warned that some of the appliances may present a dangerous electric shock hazard.

The pans, manufactured under the Presto and Sears and Roebuck brands, were all made before September, 1973. The Consumer Product Safety Commission said only those pans which have never been used or have been used very infrequently are most likely to cause a shock.

The commission urged the owners of such pans to contact National Presto Industries Inc., or the nearest Sears store, to see if repair or replacement is necessary. The hazard involves current leakage, which tends to be corrected when the pan is used frequently and the insulation becomes dried out.

Commissioner Lawrence M. Kishner said at a briefing several days before the announcement was made that there could be "substantial harm" from the shock since the user might not be able to loose his grip on the pan because of the involuntary muscle contraction. Such a shock, he said, could be more than the human heart could stand.

Pans made after September, 1973, when Presto changed its manufacturing process, are not involved, the commission and the company said.

Consumers who want to check out their pans should contact National Presto Industries Inc., Service Department, Box 83, Eau Claire, Wis., 54701, or their local Sears store, providing them with the serial number of the pan.

Pans made prior to September, 1973, can be identified by a serial number on the bottom of the electrical connection. The commission said the number appears below the word "series" and the Presto pans involved can be identified if the last two digits in the serial number are "72" or less, or where the last two digits are "73"", if the whole number is smaller than "3673".

The Sears pans have model number "620" as the first three numbers in the serial with the month and the year in a code written below the word "series" of 0873 (August of 1973), or earlier.

SLA shootout scene

Tourists view aftermath

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The black residents of 54th Street have never seen so many white people in their neighborhood before.

Tourists come from miles around to see the rubble and the bullet holes that show where six of the Symbionese Liberation Army made their last stand. The aftermath of last Friday's shootout will probably be felt here for a long time.

"We hardly ever see any white people down here," one black resident said. "I even noticed quite a few Orientals."

The curious came on foot and in cars, trucks and buses. Many had cameras. Some looked for souvenirs—empty bullet casings, a piece of charred rubble. One couple, on vacation from Philadelphia, said they wanted to see a "real sight" while in California.

Some of the visitors combined business with pleasure. Since they "just happened to be in the area" they thought they would drive by. There was an Army truck...a furniture van...a termite exterminator . . . a taxi . . . a sheriff's car . . . three tow trucks . . . and lots of junk dealers. There was even a catering truck, but he could not find a place to park, so he drove on.

Traffic became so heavy Monday that police set up barricades at both ends of the block.

"I'll tell you why everyone is here," said Oscar Farrell, a neighbor. "All you need is something unusual and people'll come around. But if you ever need help, no one'll come. I know. I'm 81 years old."

Many residents are angry when they look at the aftermath of the shootout. They think more persons were affected than the six who wore killed in the house.

"If this had been in Beverly Hills or North Hollywod, the police wouldn't have done what they did here," said resident Freddie Boyd. "They started shooting up the neighborhood without warning any of the people in the neighborhood.

"If someone had been killed, all they could do was say they were sorry."

But the shootout probably had the greatest effect on Christine Johnson, who rented her house to the SLA and said she was a hostage of the group.

Mrs. Johnson, 35, barely escaped with her life. She told police that while the SLA members ran to the back of the house as the fire broke out, she ran to the front. Amidst flying bullets and tear gas projectiles she ran out the front door, screaming, "They held me hostage! They made me stay."

Mrs. Johnson, who suffered minor gunshot wounds, was booked on charges of harboring fugitives, but the charges were dropped Sunday.

Her son, James, 18, complained of losing his home in the fire—especially since they had just bought a new refrigerator.

"What's going to happen now?" wondered Mrs. Patricia Person, whose home was damaged by bullets. "A year or a year and a half from now when this is over, we will have rats and roaches because of this. And the first thing they will say is that we (blacks) are filthy."

Two homes, flanking the hideout house, were virtually destroyed by the flames.

Another displaced person, Mrs. Annie Marie Dale, has been living with relatives since Friday. Before rushing off to her job Monday morning, she managed to salvage a television, a bookcase with an encyclopedia, some papers and what looked like a basketball trophy from her burned home.

Mrs. Matie Morrison is an elderly woman who was confined home. Now Mrs. Morrison is living at a small neighborhood church. She hopes her city councilman can find her a place to live.

"There is nothing for me to do," she said. "All my stuff was destroyed—all my furniture. I am just trying to find some place to live."

The city attorney's office said persons with damage claims may file reports with that office. The claims will be investigated and if they are denied as unjustified, persons have six months to file suit against the city.

Firebombed, life threatened

Showed house to 2 black families

DETROIT (UPI) — Joe Jurcak figured he could rest because he sold his home on the city's Northeast Side.

He had shown it to two black families and that spurred threats.

One letter said: "Death notice. Children by fire. No blacks, the buyers."

But he sold it to a white family and Monday someone threw a fire bomb in his backyard that damaged a swimming pool, lawn chairs and a table, valued at $500.

Jurcak, who has been disabled with a back injury since 1970, sat in his dining room with a pistol on his table and said whoever threw the fire bomb probably didn't know the neighborhood was going to stay white.

"We sort of joked about it," he said of the letter recently received. "One guy told us on the phone we had two weeks to live.

"It's evident he doesn't know we sold it (the house) to whites."

Jurcak, who has three kids, Michelle, 11, Lois, 10 and Michael, 8, said the "deadline to live" is Thursday.

"But we can't get out of here until June 24 when the new home we bought will be vacated," he said.

In the area near the Detroit city airport where Jurcak lives, five black families who recently tried to move into all-white neighborhoods were subjected to severe harassment.

In one case in February, a patrolman and police cadet were found guilty of firebombing and were dismissed from the force.

"We've lived here for five years without any problems from the neighbors," Jurcak said. "Now that they've kicked me out of here, I wish they or whoever is doing this would leave us alone."

Senate passes bill giving schools aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate has completed action on a four-year, $24 billion bill for federal aid to grade and high schools which President Nixon warned in advance he would not accept.

This main education legislation of this second session of Congress was approved Monday on an 81-5 vote and sent to the House, which earlier passed a three-year, $18 billion measure.

One major point opposed by Nixon in the Senate measure and which will now be considered, along with other differences, in a House-Senate conference committee, is antibusing language which the White House said does not go far enough.

The House bill contains busing provisions, supported by Nixon, which would ban transporting students beyond the second closest school to their homes, prohibit busing that crosses school district lines and which would open up all past court-ordered busing cases and subject them to the new prohibitions.

The Senate earlier rejected the House busing proposals and adopted language that would permit the second closest school limit only if a court rules it is not unconstitutional, permit cross district busing if the districts involved were found in noncompliance with desegregation plans, and which would apply only to future court-ordered desegregation plans.

The Senate measure would earmark more than half, or $12.5 billion, of the total authorization for aid to disadvantaged school districts, and it adopted nearly identical House provisions for a new plan of allocating that aid.

Under present law, equal weight in allocating the aid is given to the number of students in a school from families below the poverty level and to the number of students on welfare.

The new formula would lessen the weight of the welfare factor to the detriment of hig-h-population states with steep welfare rolls and to the benefit of rural areas with fewer people and thus smaller welfare payments.

One other major aid program in the measure would authorize $3.4 billion over the four years for "impacted" aid to schools with children of federal civilian and military personnel.

ESCAPEE RETURNS — Lacy Carroll Burleson, left, of Clinton, Iowa breaks down in tears after turning himself in to officials in Raleigh, N.C. Burleson, alias Gary Ladd, escaped from the Halifax, N.C. County prison 21 years ago where he was serving a 5-7 year sentence for bigamy. His 21-year-old son Phillip Burleson is shown on the right. Burleson said he had led a normal existence while a fugitive.

Escaped bigamist returns to prison after spending 21 fugitive years roll Burleson, a man who was tired of running, turned himself over to North Carolina officials Wednesday after living a "good, clean life" as a fugitive for 21 years.

"I'm getting too damn old to run anymore," said Burleson, 47, a native of Winston-Salem, N.C. "I probably could have stayed away another 20 years, but I decided it just wasn't any use."

Burleson surrendered to Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr.'s legal counsel, Fred Morrison. He was accompanied by his 21-year-old son, Phillip, and his attorney, Glenn Pettyjohn, both of Winston-Salem.

Burleson was convicted of bigamy March 4, 1953, and served only two months of his five-to seven-year sentence in the Halifax County prison before he escaped May 7, 1953.

Today he was back in prison, and Morrison said he could make no "specific promises" as to how long he must remain. But the governor's counsel said his office would recommend that the parole board conduct an investigation into Burleson's activities while he was a fugitive. He also said he would ask the board to recommend to the governor the possibility of a reduced sentence or a pardon.

As "Gary Medford Ladd," Burleson lived and worked briefly in Towson, Md., Lake Geneva, Wis., Rockford, Ill., and Beloit, Wis., before settling down in Clinton, Iowa, where he lived the next 20 years "in the same house on the same block."

Burleson, dressed in a gray and white checkered sport jacket, a red and white shirt and red slacks, said while he lived in Clinton he worked at various jobs and owned several businessess, including a laundry, a tree service and a tavern.

"In the 21 years, I haven't done anything that I'm ashamed of," he said. "As far as that goes, the chief of police, he's known me for 20 years. The mayor's known me for 20 years."

He said he began thinking about returning as far back as 10 years ago when he contacted an attorney about the procedure. But the attorney died.

"I just kept working and working trying to get free, and I still ain't free," said Burleson. "Then I finally said I'd just as well give myself up in order to be free."

Burleson has been married and divorced five times. The bigamy charge stemmed from his fourth marriage, which occurred without a divorce from his third wife. In addition to his son, Phillip, he has 15-year-old twins and a son, 13, by his fifth wife, and an adopted daughter, 17.

During his absence, Burleson's mother, father, a brother and a sister died without his knowing about it. When asked if he had any contact with his family during his 21-year absence, Burleson replied, "No," and then he wept.

Congressional candidate feels all workers should share in ownership

WALNUT CREEK (UPI) — Gary Reber is running for Congress on the unusual theme that workers must share in the ownership of job-robbing machines to prevent becoming unemployed "slaves" of the rich.

The 31-year-old Contra Costa County Democrat predicts that more than $2 trillion will be spent within the next decade to further expand automation into the American economy.

"If we continue to finance that future so that the same five per cent of the population who now own America will own that future, what will we have," asked Reber. "It's going to be a virtual slave state. The masses are going to become wards of the state."

The young candidate for the 7th Congressional District seat being vacated by Jerome Waldie says that only by allowing working people to become capitalists can the United States change its course of becoming a socialist welfare society.

"It is the responsibility of labor to inform its rank and file that it is a good thing to be rich and a capitalist owner," said Reber. "It's not wrong to ask your boss to become a partner in that which you've been helping to build all along. It's time for workers to own now."

Reber, president of the Institute for the Pursuit of Economic Justice in Berkeley and a former National Public Advocate in Washington, D.C., said he has been meeting workers at factory gates for the past three weeks and has found wide support for his viewpoint.

Reber's Democratic opponent in Tuesday's primary is Art Carter, secretary-treasurer of the Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO, in Martinez. Carter recently said on a television interview that the 55,000 workers he represents weren't interested in becoming capitalist owners.

Reber said that Carter has refused to debate him on the issue, which was Reber's main reason for entering the congressional race.

"Steps to broaden the capital ownership base must be given priority over every other aspect of economic reform if we are to recapture the American dream which once made the United States the epitome of a good, ethical moral society.

"The promise of technology is freedom from toil. Working people have got to be able to participate in that technology."

Parakeet exercises the best by flying

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've observed you're an advocate of trim-up campaigns for our obese animals. Tell me, if you will, what's the safest way to exercise a parakeet? —F.A.

Dear F.A.: Leg work like jogging is definitely out. Wing work is the exercise answer for paunchy parakeets. Like all exercise, it must be initiated slowly. Because of their weight, some prodigious parakeets who try to fly will crash heavily (and dangerously) to the floor if they're turned loose in a room.

Others who do manage to become airborne are clumsy and may suffer catastrophic collisions as a result. Better budgie navigators may still stress themselves dangerously if they're launched suddenly on an aerial athletic program.

A flight cage with Spartan furnishings to provide maximum flight room within its walls would, with restricted rations, provide an optimum over-all weight-reducing program for your pudgy budgie or, for that matter, for a corpulent canary.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our dog, Little Sheba, insists on her daily bone but she vomits them quite often. She's more likely to do this when she's had a bad day. Why? —S.S.

Dear S.S.: Any day these days could be a bad day for Little Sheba. She's living dangerously as long as you continue feeding her bones. The act of vomting razor-edged bone splinters in itself is hardly hazard-free. Sharp bone ends can puncture the stomach as it contracts over the bones or they can cut or puncture the esophagus as they are being ejected. The vomiting is clearly a sign bones don't agree with her, though retaining them could be just as dangerous. Bone fragments can lodge in a mass in the small intestine, causing intestinal perforation and-or complete obstruction. The victim can often be saved by surgery IF the intestinal wall remains intact and surgery is performed soon enough.

Those obvious episodes occurring on Little Sheba's "bad days" probably indicate digestion (stomach acids in particular) is ineffective at that time. Actually, there's no way of predicting with any dog when a day of ineffective digestion can occur. This makes bone consumption even more dangerous. Most dogs will "insist" on daily bones if given the option. It's up to the owner to insist on a substitute—from a raw carrot to a hard dog biscuit or a nylon bone. Feeding bones to a dog is a form of canine Russian roulette which isn't worth the risks involved.

Detroit spends quiet weekend

DETROIT (UPI) — For 48 hours and 10 minutes this weekend, Detroit recorded no homicides —a feat not accomplished in 13 months.

The uncommon weekend of peace began Friday at 3:55 p.m. (EDT) when a homicide was recorded and ended Sunday afternoon when police reported the gunshot slaying of Philip Garett, 25, who was felled by a bulled in the back fired from a car as he walked down a west side street.

The last such period without himicides was April 18-19 in 1973.

Despite the two-day span without a homicide, Detroiters this year have been getting slain at a record pace. So far, there have been 303 homicides this year compared with 259 in the same time frame last year.

In all of 1973, 751 persons died in slayings.

Priest called back from White House

BOSTON (UPI) — The Rev. John J. McLaughlin, the Jesuit priest who works as a White House aide and lives in Washington's plush Watergate apartment complex, has been called back to Boston by his religious superior "to pray and reflect about his life."

McLaughlin, 47, recently became involved in controversy when he said he did not think the President's frequent use of profanities during talks with his aides had "any moral meaning." He also said he thought the President "acquitted himself with honor" when he made public the White House transcripts of Watergate-related conversations.

The Rev. Richard T. Cleary, the regional provincial of the Jesuit Fathers of New England, Wednesday disclaimed any connection between the Church and McLaughlin's statements about the President.

He also said that in view of the Jesuit vow of poverty, he was "puzzled" by McLaughlin's life style, including living at the Watergate complex where rents range from $425 to $700 a month. "To be credible in the world, we have to be poor people," Cleary said.

Cleary said before deciding whether to take any action against McLaughlin, he would call him back to Boston "to pray about his situation and reflect about his life with me." Cleary said he had three choices —take disciplinary action against McLaughlin, recommend that he be expelled from the order, or take no action at all.

"As his religious superior, I would like to state that Fr. McLaughlin does not speak officially in any way whatsoever for the church, the Jesuit Fathers, or myself," Cleary said in a statement.

"When he speaks, he does so for himself alone; his opinions, interpretations of the moral law, and points of view are entirely his own, and they should be taken and evaluated as such.

"There is, however, a more fundamental issue. Since Fr. McLaughlin has freely made a religious commitment with clear and specific obligations, I am puzzled by his publicly stated understanding of his status as a Jesuit priest."

Later at a news conference, Cleary said, "I don't think it gives a very good witness to what we're trying to do to be living in the Watergate apartments."

"He has said he is responsible to the President. That is his right. But what does that mean to someone who has freely taken vows of poverty and obedience?" Cleary said.

McLaughlin, at a news conference Wednesday in Chicago, said he did not consider his White House job and secular lifestyle as unorthodox.

McLaughlin also called Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., an outspoken critic of Nixon and a member of the committee considering impeachment, an "impeachment zany."

State officials advise highway construction cut

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Department of Transportation officials have recommended that California's spending on highway construction be reduced by more than 50 per cent during the next eight years.

The department's call for the sharp spending cut was contained in a plan for highway building through 1982 presented Wednesday to the state Highway Commission. It cited lower tax revenues caused by the energy shortage and higher building costs.

The plan called for spending $3.9 billion over the next eight years, compared to $8 billion the department in 1972 estimated would be available.

Many large-scale freeway projects have been completely removed from the planning program, and for others, there have been substitutions of smaller, less expensive plans designed to maintain service at lower cost," said Transportation Director Howard C. Ullrich.

"California's motorists can expect that congestion and inconvenience will increase somewhat over the next eight years," he added.

Ullrich said that in some cases the department would recommend that transit service be improved in an area rather than development of new highway facilities.

He also said there are 121 projects in the new program involving development of some other transportation mode in conjunction with a highway, including special bus and carpool lanes, bus stops, bicycle paths and rail transit.

Ullrich said that as late as the fall of 1972, his department had estimated that $8 billion would be available over the period for major highway construction and purchase of rights of way.

But now the department is saying that only $3.9 billion will be available, and spread over eight years, its worth will drop to $2.7 billion because of inflation.

Toll free hot line for oil spills is here

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A 24-hour-a-day, toll-free telephone system has been put into operation to alert state agencies for action in the event of oil spills in California, Gov. Ronald Reagan reports.

Reagan Tuesday said anyone observing an oil spill can use the toll-free number—(800) 852-7550—to notify the state Officer of Emergency Services in Sacramento.

The new alert system, the governor said, is part of a revised state Oil Spill Contingency Plan which outlines measures state agencies will take to protect public health, wildlife and the environment in case of spills.

"The new telephone alert system will enable the state to respond to oil spills, and spills of other hazardous materials," Reagan said.

He said the contingency plan "will coordinate the response of state agencies to ensure the most efficient use of their capabilities."

The Office of Emergency Services, after receiving notice of a spill, will notify the state Department of Fish and Game, which has the main responsibility for initial response and evaluation.

Other state agencies which will be notified include the attorney general's office, Division of Forestry, Highway Patrol, the departments of Public Health, Transportation, Parks and Recreation and Water Resources, the Division of Oil and Gas, Regional Water Quality Control Boards, and the state Lands Commission.

The lighter side

TV blurb writers lose another round

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Emmy awards, last stop on this year's grand tour of show biz ego trips, are coming up next week.

In looking over the list of semi-finalists announced last week, I was distressed to note that the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences failed to establish a category for "Program Blurbs."

Program blurbs, whether written for TV shows, the movies or Broadway productions, are an art form unto themselves. Yet this important medium of cultural expression is shamefully slighted with respect to critical recognition.

Those of us who would like to see blurb writers honored along with the rest of the mob were heartened earlier this year when the Grammy awards ceremony included a category caled 'Album Notes.'

It was truly refreshing, among all that award-winning vocalizing, to find the record industry giving a pat on the back to the printed word.

As you well know if too have bought any records lately, the notes on the back of the album cover quite often are a great deal better than the music inside.

Regrettably, the fine example set by the Grammy awards was ignored by the Oscar awards for motion picture achievement and the Tony awards for distinguished work in the legitimate theater.

And now we find the persons in charge of Emmy award categories being equally unresponsive. What ingrates they are!

It is no secret that many of the nominees for show biz homage owe that distinction not so much to their own talents as to some blurb writer's imagination.

An actress arising to accept a Tony will thank everyone from the producer down to the ticker-taker, but never mention the author of the blurb that gave her such flattering consideration in the program notes.

I say the time has come for these unsung eulogists to receive appreciation commensurate with their contribution to stage, screen and tlevision.

And if they can't get it from the established academies responsible for the award presentations, then let them have a ceremony of their own.

Welcome to the first annual awards presentation of the National Academy of Motion Picture, Television and Theater Panegyrists.

Called the Johnny Awards, they honor outstanding achievement in the field of overinflating the merits of some production or performance.

The awards, obviously, take their name from John Alden, the famed Pilgrim who did such a fabulous job of building up Miles Standish in the eyes of Priscilla Mullens.

May I have the envelopes, please?

Islamic words

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fazlur Rahman, professor of Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations at the University of Chicago, says that Islamic philosophy had strong influence on the west in the Middle Ages, some contemporary words are derived from Islamic words, such as alcohol, from al-kuhl, a finely ground powder; algebra, from al-jabr, the binding together of disorganized parts; admiral, from amir al-bahr, commander of the ocean.

Study concludes

Women do as well as men in D.C. policing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A study of policewomen's performance in Washington, where they pull the same duty as men, shows that women officers generally do as well in tough patrol work.

The Police Foundation said Sunday that a study of two precincts concluded sex is not a valid consideration in hiring or assigning police officers.

Foundation President Patrick V. Murphy said the study is significant because the 1972 Equal Employment Opportunity Act requires every police department to hire and assign men and women on an equal basis or "demonstrate there is a legitimate occupational qualification for not doing so."

"While this evaluation measured the effectiveness of Washington policewomen on patrol, we believe the results are generally useful nationwide," said Murphy, who formerly headed police departments here and in New York City.

The study contained these conclusions:

—Women and men on patrol performed generally in the same way. There was no difference in their ability to deal with violent or potentially violent situations.

—Women made fewer arrests and gave fewer traffic tickets than the men did. But the women spent slightly less time on patrol. About one fifth of the women made more arrests than men did.

—More men than women were cited for "serious unbecoming conduct."

—Women got light duty as a result of injuries more often than men but did not lose more time from work because of injuries.

—Driving accident records for men and women were about the same but women needed two weeks more time to pass the police driving test.

Following are typical observer reports as summed up in the study:

—"One policewoman flipped a belligerent, 250-pound intoxicated man over her shoulder and then handcuffed him."

— "Another policewoman found lying on the sidewalk a drunk male who became belligerent. The policewoman 'kinda charmed the guy' and persuaded him to go to the detoxification center."

—"Another policewoman was handling an incident 'beautifully' ... as she worked to persuade a drunk to go home with his wife. Then a male officer interceded, putting his hands on the drunk and started some pushing and shoving. The patrolman ended up arresting the man and getting credit for an arrest."

The hot corner

3rd baseman survives strike by lightning

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — It was the bottom half of the second inning and third baseman Greg Lehrer fiddled with his glasses to peer at the dark rain clouds that rumbled out of the west.

"The pitcher threw a ball and the catcher missed it. I took off my glove and shuffled some dirt in front of my feet," he said Tuesday. "The next thing I remember I was in the hospital.'

The 14-year-old boy had been struck by lightning.

The bolt shredded his White Sox cap, entered his body through his forehead and exited through his right heel. Burns on both spots showed the lightning's power.

Greg was knocked unconscious and might have died, but for heart massage and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by two policemen who had been coaching another nearby game.

The boy lay limp for 40 minutes. His legs, burned together, had to be pulled apart. The zipper on his uniform was melted. His heavy metal belt buckle was so hot it couldn't be touched. A chain around his neck was disintegrated.

The medal on the chain was blackened but not destroyed. It said: "O Mary Conceived Without Sin, Pray for Us Who Have Recourse to Thee."

A week after the incident, Greg has superficial burns on his body and a ruptured eardrum which is expected to heal. And he and his mother have a new outlook.

"I just think it wasn't my time to go yet," said Greg. "I knew it had to be more than luck that I lived."

"The only explanation is that the Lord was just not ready for him and that is all," said his mother.

When he regained consciousness, doctors told him he had been hit by a baseball.

"I hadn't seen the burns yet. They told me I was hit with a baseball because they thought I might go into shock, knowing I was hit by lightning," Greg said.

He recovered at Irving Community Hospital. "I guess the greatest feeling I had was when I walked out of that hospital. I could just have been as easy dead as alive."

For Saturday, May 25

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some minor discords will arise domestically. They can be smoothed over quickly if both parties are willing to say they're sorry.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your interest will be split today. That which you're involved with will suffer. Neither interest will get the proper attention.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) All your good resolutions regarding budgeting are likely to go down the pipe. You spend more freely than you should.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An outside obligation and your family will both be tugging for your attention today. You'll do better to give domestic matters priority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be reticent about asking another to help with a problem you can't resolve. He'll not think any less of you for it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take it easy this weekend where spending is concerned. You're nowhere near as lucky today as you were yesterday. Don't take risks you shouldn't. Play everything close to the vest.

Your Birthday May 25

The early part of this year, things may not come together as quickly as you'd like. Don't be discouraged. When the score is tallied you'll come out ahead.

FORTUNE KOOKIES

You're not thinking about material things as practically as you should.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're overly sensitive today in analyzing the way friends behave toward you. This could lead you to make an issue over nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Give credit where credit is due. If you try to take over the spotlight without acknowledging assistance you'll wind up with an angry teammate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a bit of impishness in you. This could lead you to look for greener pastures. Things will get very complicated if you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Tasks requiring complete concentration should not be attempted till later in the day. In the a.m., your attention span is very limited.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ZONING CASE 6524-(1)

PROPOSED AMENDMENT OF SECTION 54 OF ORDINANCE NO. 10710, AN ORDINANCE TEMPORARILY PROHIBITING USES INCONSISTENT WITH THE GENERAL PLAN, COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles on the matter of a proposed amendment to Section 54 of Ordinance No. 10710, deleting therefrom certain portions of the San Jose Zoned District No. 21.

Said hearing will be held on June 27, 1974 at 9:30 a.m. in the Hearing Room of the Board of Supervisors, Room 381, Hall of Administration, 500 West Temple Street (corner of Temple Street and Grand Avenue), Los Angeles, California 90012, at which time proponents and opponents of the proposed amendment will be heard before the Board of Supervisors. The affected properties are within the area bounded as follows: on the west by a line parallel to the adjacent A-1-1 and R-1-8,500 zoning, on the north by adjacent R-1-20,000 zoning, on the east by the Orange Freeway, and on the south by Brea Canyon Cutoff Road. (All measurements being approximate.) The property under consideration in this case is also included within Zoning Case No. 6062-(1).

The Regional Planning Commission, County of Los Angeles, has adopted a resolution recommending:

1. No change of zone;
2. That the Board of Supervisors repeal that portion of Section 54 of Ordinance No. 10710 which established urgency zoning of R-1-25,000 and R-1-7,500 on portions of the subject property; and
3. That the Board of Supervisors hold a public hearing to consider the above-recommended amendment to Ordinance No. 10710.

Gubernatorial primary hopefuls haven't agreed on debate format

By United Press International

Representatives of three leading Democratic gubernatorial candidates have recessed until Monday their negotiations on a format for a June 1 televised debate.

The representatives met for three hours Wednesday in Los Angeles in an unsuccessful attempt to agree on a format.

John Fitzrandolph, campaign manager for Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, accused the camp of Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. of "waffling" on the debate.

Fitzrandolph said he and a representative of San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto agreed to the format for the debate on Los Angeles television station KNBC but Brown's campaign manager, Tom Quinn, did not go along.

Quinn denied he was trying to delay action on a debate until it was too late to hold it. He said KNBC rejected his format proposal which he said was aimed at preventing "mudslinging" and guaranteeing an "indepth exploration of issues."

But Quinn said there "absolutely" will be a joint appearance by the candidates on KNBC.

In other campaign developments Wednesday:

Brown accused the Reagan administration of "shocking neglect" of California's unemployment problem, noting the state's unemployment rate is 7.6 per cent while the nation's is 5 per cent. He said Reagan "now appears interested only in national office rather than the problems of California."

Tom Malatesta said the candidacy of rival Republican U. S. Senate candidate H. L. Richardson is "suicidal for the Republican party." Malatesta said if the party selects Richardson as its U.S. Senate nominee on June 4, it will be choosing "a candidate who by his own statements does not feel he can defeat (Democratic incumbent) Alan Cranston but wants to use his campaign rostrum for a public display of his views."

Dr. Earl W. Brian, another GOP candidate for the U.S. Senate, said Los Angeles police "seemed to have had little alternative" than to shoot it out with Symbionese Liberation Army members last week. Six SLA members died in the gun battle. Brian said police handling of the incident "probably saved the lives of innocent people."

Rattles & straws

Billingsgate at Watergate

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

"Bad language or abuse I never, never use,
Whatever the emergency
Though 'Bother it' I may occasionally say,
I never use a big, big D—"

So sings Capt. Corocoran, commanding HMS Pinafore in the Gilbert Sullivan operetta of the same name ("Corcoran"). And his gallant crew, roguishly skeptical, supplies that immortal refrain, "What never?" "No, never!" "What NEVER?" "Well, HARDLY ever . . ."

Do you swear? How often do you use naughty words? Of what nature are they — blasphemous, obscene, salacious, scatological? What is your provocation? Don't you know it's not nice? So cut out that D$&X?%#!$& swearing.

One of the interesting sidelights — and for many the highligh — of the endless Watergate tapes is the revelation that Quaker-bred, highly moral Richard Nixon is some kind of a (expletive deleted) President.

Since World War II, the loud barrage — sometimes casual, sometimes explosive — of swearing has become prevalent in America, now acceptable on stage, screen and radio by our increasingly permissive society. Used to was you could get thrown in jail for using "bad language" in public. No more. Now you can read four-letter words in the Wall Street Journal and now, it turns out, hear them with the regularity of machinegun bullets in the Oval Room of the White House.

'(Charming cartoon by Frank Williams in the Detroit Free Press showed a two-year-old boy addressing his toys in blue language, and a proud father saying to a distressed mother, "He may grow up to be President!")

Women swear more than they used to — presumably they have more to swear about, as who doesn't? Kids swear. Ten-year-olds scrawl on school walls words I didn't know existed until I had been in the Army three months.

The fire storm of profanity from our Preisdent should come as no surprise to the people of America. If anyone has a right to swear, it's Nixon. I'd be astonished to learn that he didn't swear. The things he faces would cause a Baptist preacher to express himself in Biblical terms.

Psychologists are having a ball with this four-letter aspect of the Watergate tapes. Washington psychoanalyst Dr. Michael Maccoby says Nixon swears to show his comtempt for people who show contempt for him — presumably quite a large number. Harvard sociologist David Riesman says the President's expletives (deleted) show his admiration for tough guys like Gen. George Patton and John Wayne.

My horseback estimate, based on a bumbling career as a journalist, is that most people swear — some from sudden mental or physical anguish, some as a way of communication. You hit your thumb with the hammer or your wife comes home with a $45 hat or your handball partner drills you between the shoulder blades with his patented "kill shot" — you rip out a juicy expletive, deleted as a matter of course.

The bright side of the tapes — if there is one — is that Nixon's purple prose may be doing him some good. Anthropologist Ashley Montague feels that blasphemy and profanity have salubrious psychological and social benefits for the swearer, relieving him of tensions and conflicts as much as laughing or weeping.

For all we know, Nixon is getting well.

Correct play saves contract

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In heaven suits always break; finesses always work; and all contracts come home. In this mundane sphere things aren't always that pleasant.

South won the club and promptly played out the ace and king of trumps. East showed out but that didn't worry South. He played his ace and king of hearts. West ruffed, played his queen of trumps and led another club. Somehow or other when the smoke had cleared away, South found that he had managed to salvage only eight tricks from the mess.

Correct play would have brought the contract home in spite of the bad breaks. South should play his ace of hearts; lead a trump to dummy's king and them go back to hearts. West would ruff the second high heart and probably lead a trump. Not that it would matter what he led.

South would be back on lead and play a third heart. East would win and lead anything he wanted. It wouldn't matter. South would get to ruff a heart in dummy to establish his last heart as a winner.

Nancy was idealist, say parents

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — Harold Ling, a furniture dealer, and his wife, Marge, today issued a loving "portrait by her parents" of their daughter Nancy Ling Perry, who died Friday in the Symbionese Liberation Army shootout in Los Angeles.

"We always loved her and always will," the Lings said, and thanked "all of those who have written, called and prayed for Nancy and our families.

"She was idealistic, and firmly believed that problems should be solved, not merely tolerated. She was impetuous and impatient, and thus often frustrated because she seldom found the solutions she thought were needed.

"The Nancy we know was compassionate and constantly concerned with the welfare of others. She identified with the oppressed and many times became their advocate."

The parents noted that the daughter has been called "a common criminal," but they noted that common criminals act for personal gain.

While deploring their daughter's methods, the Lings said, "We still feel the goals deserve further scrutiny.

"Whatever can be said against these methods, Nancy never sought personal gain and ultimately showed herself willing to die for her convictions.

"She was gentle, tender, pliable, and therefore easily hurt. She was capable of great love and needed to be loved.

"The portrait of the Nancy we saw was one of an intense, serious, passionate woman who suffered so much from the pain of others that she felt herself driven to take action.

"Hopefully, Nancy has now found peace."

Tito is preparing for post-Tito era

BELGRADE (UPI) — At 81, President Tito looks tanned and extremely fit for his age, travels frequently, still goes bear and deer hunting and remains the guiding hand at the helm of government.

But last November he publicly admitted for the first time that he was old and uncharacteristically said: "...a president must be active and it is a question of whether a man of my age can continue to satisfy the people."

Since then Tito has suffered an illness that kept him out of action for a month, Yugoslavia has acquired a new constitution —and an 18-month purge designed to ensure that Tito leaves Yugoslavia in united Marxist hands is winding up as the 10th party congress approaches.

As a result of these collective developments, political observers are looking to the congress, provisionally scheduled for May, for clues to the direction Yugoslavia will take when Tito dies or retires from the political scene.

Western diplomats say Tito may well use the occasion of the congress to begin handing down some of his power. Currently he is president of the republic, commander of the armed forces and president of the party. Observers suggest he might resign one of the presidencies, most probably of the republic.

Doing so, Tito would not lessen his prestige but would be given the chance to build up the authority of the collective leadership he has said he wants to take over the presidency—if that is still on his mind.

It may not be. Government sources say now that Tito has become less enthusiastic about the idea of a collective leadership and has come to recognize the need for one man to shepherd the country when he departs the political scene. These sources say the man Tito may have in mind is Edvard Kardelj, 64, the president's long-serving confidant.

According to this latest script, the sources say, Kardelj will be voted into a special new post at the congress—either as secretary-general of the party or possibly as an institutionalized vice president—in order to make sure he has a strong hand in post-Tito Yugoslavia. Although unquestionably Tito's No.2, Kardelj has no post other than being a member of the party presidium and has previously been discounted as a possible successor for his lack of charisma and public appeal.

A stocky, ruddy-faced man, Kardelj emerged from World War II as one of Yugoslavia's big four, alongside Tito, Aleksander Rankovic and Milovan Djilas. Although never as close to Tito as the other two once were, he moved into a position of unchallenged influence when they fell out with Tito.

Together with Djilas, Kardelj worked out much of the ideological basis of Yugloslavia's post-war development and he is the author of the country's latest constitution, which in theory puts greater political and economic power in the hands of ordinary workers.

Promoting Kardelj to a position of authority would put more muscle at the top, which would be in keeping with present trends toward stronger central government. Recent moves have included beefing up the authority of the party and central government leadership, although lip service is still being paid to the idea of republican autonomy and decentralization.

Most observers here doubt there there will be a return to the kind of decentralization that gained momentum in 1969 and brought on major political friction between Yugoslavia's two largest republics, Serbia and Croatia. It took the personal authority of Tito to cool down that conflict and hold the country together.

Moves away from decentralization have led to accusations of neo-Stalinism by the regime's critics. Mainly, the critics want a more democratic party, a smaller bureaucracy, more decentralization and true implementation of self-management by workers.

Tito's supporters say he has wisely decided that the potentially volatile federation of individualistic republics that is Yugoslavia can only function under a powerful central government. They say Tito has decided that strong leadership is as important as strong central government if Yugoslavia is to maintain its position of relative independence vis-avis the Soviet bloc. Reflections of this mood of the president, these supporters say, will be seen at the coming congress.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Drivers who commute 30 to 40 miles per day could save more than $1,500 a year by using the bus instead of their car, according to a report present Tuesday to the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

The research report, prepared by Arthur D. Little, Inc., studied six areas of community impact, including a comparison between rapid transit and the automobile.

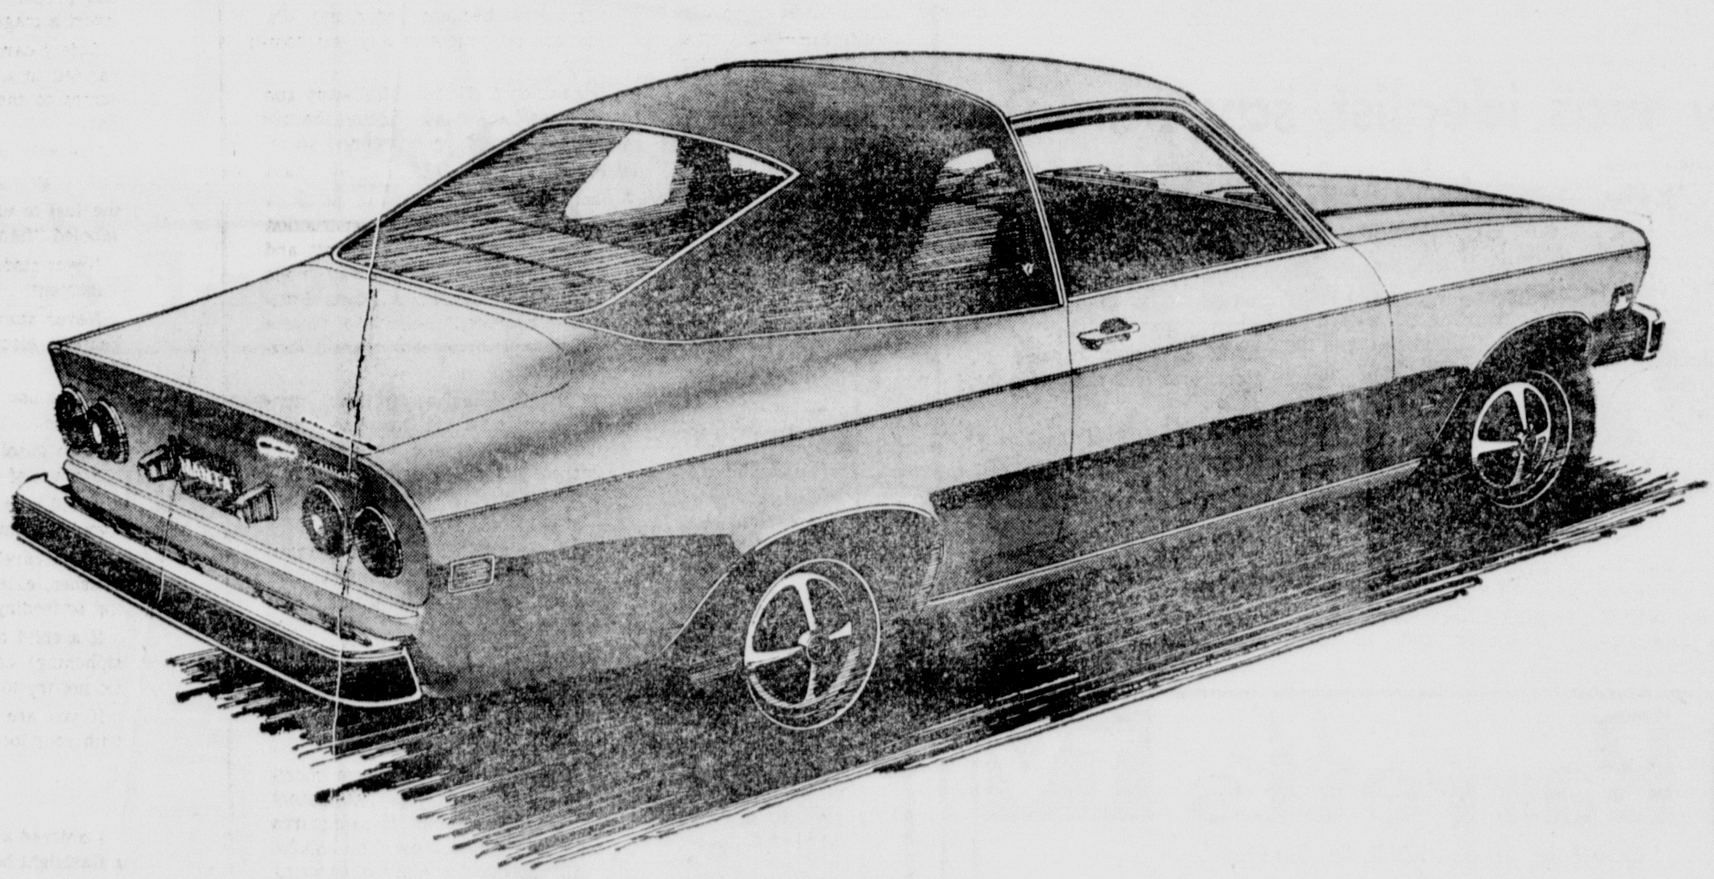
Introducing the Opel Manta Landau.



That landau top won't make Opel faster. It won't make the Manta tougher in the corners. It won't really change the way Opel approaches a stretch of road, in other words.

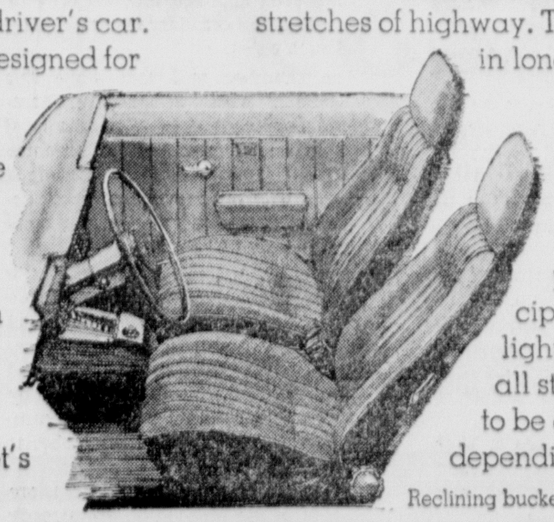
It's simply the kind of roofline a lot of people like. And since we like to please people, we're now offering a landau top for our Opel Manta.

All we ask is that you keep one thing in mind. The least important thing about an Opel Manta is what kind of top it has—landau, plain vinyl, or paint.

Because deep down inside—where it most certainly counts—Opel is a driver's car.

After all, the Manta was designed for people who think a whole lot more of gas economy than they do of chrome. For people who think great cornering ranks up there with Wagner and Beethoven. For people who think a great suspension is one that helps hold the road . . . not one that makes the road disappear.

But enough philosophy. Let's get a bit more specific.



Economical performance is at the bottom of it all.

The heart of an Opel's economy is a small, precision-built, 1900cc, cam-in-head, 4-cylinder engine.

Mated to this is a standard 4-speed transmission (although a 3-speed automatic is also available).

Front and rear stabilizer bars are standard, as is rack-and-pinion steering and power front disc brakes.

No-nonsense seating, instrumentation.

Front bucket seats are designed for comfort in turns as well as long stretches of highway. They're upholstered in long-wearing, perforated vinyl. And the seatbacks recline at the twist of a knob.

Instrumentation, in best grand touring practice, is a disciplined array of gauges, lights, dials, and switches, all strategically placed to be easy to read or reach, depending.

Reclining bucket seats, standard.

A proven best-seller.

We must have done something right. Because Opel has been a best seller in Germany for the past two years. Drive the Opel Manta Landau, at your local Buick/Opel dealer.

Opel. A proven best seller in Germany.

4 surrender in insurance fraud case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Four persons, including three chiropractors, surrendered in Superior Court Wednesday in connection with an insurance fraud network which made $44,000 in claims for traffic accidents that never happened.

The four, along with 14 other persons, were secretly indicted by a county grand jury last Friday. The 14 were still being sought.

The grand jury charged them with 31 counts of grand theft, forgery and conspiracy.

Those who surrendered Wednesday were chiropractors James T. Caine, 30, and Donald C. Carter, 45, both of Compton; Timothy C. Jackson, 30, of Altadena and secretary Nedra J. Pettigrew, 26, of Los Angeles.

They were to be arraigned May 30.

New delinquency plan, involving five cities, may start within weeks

A regional pilot program that would send some first-time and other juvenile offenders to community organizations for help as an alternative to juvenile court is expected to go into operation in about three weeks if approval comes from all five participating cities.

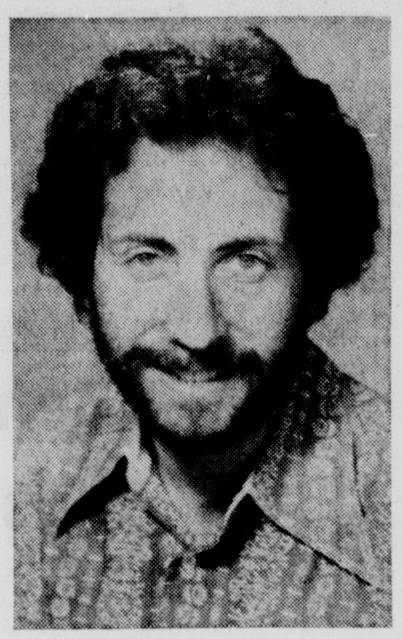
The city councils of Pomona, La Verne and San Dimas have formally consented to taking part in the project by approving a joint powers agreement creating a separate public entity to be known as the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Authority. Two other parties to the agreement, Claremont and Walnut, have yet to take action.

Pomona City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said the cost for the period ending next Jan. 31 would be $220,000, with most of the funds coming from a grant received through the California Council on Criminal Justice (CCCJ).

The five cities combined would put up about $8,000 in hard cash and also would supply an additional $33,000 in "in-kind" serivices.

Laurence N. Rubin, 25, former teacher at Fremont Junior High School, has been appointed project director, and office space has been leased at 800 N. Park Ave., Suite 101.

But before the project gets off the ground, one or more administrative positions will have to be filled and the agreement will have to be signed by the mayors, city attorneys and city clerks of the five incorporated cities.



LAURENCE RUBIN

The pilot project was formally initiated with the preliminary application last August by the Pomona City Council for a CCCJ grant under the provisions of the 1973 Crime Control Act. The funds were approved in February.

Rubin said the project would involve all law enforcement agencies and school districts in the Pomona Valley area.

He said the program would be aimed at helping juvenile offenders in the 11-17 age bracket, particularly first-time offenders and those whose families display a willingness to cooperate.

Referrals to the pilot program will be made by law enforcement agencies and school authorities.

At present, a juvenile, who finds himself in serious trouble with the law may be petitioned before a juvenile court for a disposition of his case.

But under the pilot program, authorities could decide that the petitioning before the court would not be in the best interest and instead refer the juvenile offender to a community organization.

The youthful offender would be required to spend a prescribed period of time with the community-based organization, such as the Kundalini Institute, the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center, or the Boys' Republic Delinquency Prevention Program.

If the youth straightened up, that would end the matter. If on the other hand he showed little or no signs of improvement, he could still be hauled before juvenile court or have some other punishment meted out, such as dismissal from school.

"The real purpose of this program is to make community-based agencies an integral part of the successful functioning of law enforcement and schools and to have these community-based agencies functioning as an alternative to working with youths who otherwise would be sent to the judicial system" said Rubin.

Rubin of 4030 Mills Ave., Claremont, is the son of Mrs. Nelson Rubin of Los Angeles.

While at Fremont, from September 1971 to April 1974, he served as director of the student growth center, taught math, drama and counseled in career planning and guidance.

He received a bachelor of arts degree in psychology and sociology in 1970 from Occidental College, and a master's degree in education in 1972 from Claremont Graduate School.

The authority will be governed by a board of directors whose members will be appointed by the respective City Councils.

Pomona, the largest of the cities, will have five members on the board, Claremont, two, and La Verne, San Dimas and Walnut each will have one.

Pomona C of C board action

Seven state propositions supported, two opposed

POMONA — Directors of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce have endorsed seven of the nine state propositions appearing on the June 4 ballot while recommending denial on the other two.

Those opposed are Proposition 5 dealing with highways and mass transit guidelines and Proposition 9 which would require financial disclosures and limitations affecting political campaigns, public officials and lobbyists.

While directors were unanimous on some propositions, they were divided on others, said officials. The chamber board seeks to examine state propositions and announce its recommendations before the elections.

The state propositions and the chamber of recommendations follows:

Proposition 1 (YES)—State beach, park, recreational and historical facilities bond act. If passed, the state would issue $250 million in general obligation bonds to provide funds to obtain and establish state and local parks, beaches and historical facilities.

The chamber said this would allow the purchase of recreational areas locally without property tax increase. This could include continued development of Bonelli Park.

Proposition 2 (YES) — The Clean water bond law. If the measure passes, the state will issue $250 million in general obligation bonds to help local agencies build sewer treatment facilities and water reclamation projects.

The chamber said the federal government will pay 75 per cent of the total cost of required facilities, leaving 12½ per cent to be funded by the state and 12½ per cent by local agencies. Cities will soon have to meet stricter federal regulations regarding waste treatment and this measure will help spread the burden of financing these facilities.

Proposition 3 (YES) — The veteran's bond act. Since 1921, California has assisted veterans through the Cal Vet program. To date, there have been bond issues for a total authorization of $2.5 billion. The present existing funds are expected to be depleted by next June.

The chamber said there is no cost to the taxpayer except from defaults on a very few loans. Cal Vet has stricter financial requirements to obtain the loan than does the Federal Housing Authority (FHA). This wouldn't tend to increase Pomona's problems with abandoned homes.

Proposition 4. (YES) — Property tax reassessment in event of damage or destruction. This would amend the constitution to delete the requirement that in order to reassess property damaged or destroyed by misfortune or calamity, such disaster must be declared by the governor to be a disaster area.

The chamber said property owners struck by a major disaster outside an official disaster area should have the same rights as those located within an official disaster area. There will not be any major loss of tax revenue to local governments because individual disasters are infrequent in any one community.

Proposition 5 (NO) — Highways and mass transit guideways. Should the use of highway funds be broadened to include construction costs of public mass transit guideways and fixed facilities as well as for continued construction and maintenance of public streets and highways? And should highway funds be used for measures to lessen detrimental environmental effects of streets and highways and mass transit facilities?

The chamber said a significant number of people would not use mass transit systems at the present time. Mass transit is a high-priced, slow and inefficient way of buying clean air. The proposition would tax a special group.

Proposition 6 (YES) — Public legislative proceedings. This would amend the state constitution to provide the proceedings of each house of legislature, including committee meetings, being made open to the public except as provided by the most recently enacted applicable statute or concurrent resolution.

The chamber said legislature meetings should be open just like school boards of city councils. It safeguards the public's right to know. The legislature still has the flexibility of meeting an emergency private situation by a two-thirds vote of both houses.

Proposition 7 (YES — State and Civil service exemption. This would amend the constitution to exempt from civil service the chief administrative officer and five deputies of the state's post-secondary education commission.

The chamber said the purpose is to attract better people on the commission. Civil service is presently restricting qualified people from seeking these positions and the exemption would provide greater flexibility in recruiting and hiring.

Proposition 8 (YES — Sacramento county-city's consolidation. This would amend the state constitution to permit any or all of the cities in Sacramento County to consolidate with Sacramento County upon approval of a majority of the voters in both Sacramento County and such cities.

The chamber said that while this amendment would affect only Sacramento County, it does allow the local area to decide how best to organize their own governmental practices. It is unlikely that other counties would require constitutional amendments similar to this.

Proposition 9 (NO) — Financial disclosures and limitations affecting political campaigns, public officials and lobbyists. This proposition requires reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures, disclosure of assets by public officials, limits state-wide campaign expenditures, regulates lobbyists and changes the ballot pamphlet.

The chamber said many provisions included in the proposition are already part of exisiting state statutes. The proposition is 20,000 words long and is very unclear as to its exact meaning in many areas. The new disclosure and conflict of interest laws may accomplish the intent of Prop. 9.

Pomona mayor reports

Valley mental health unit won't be merged

SACRAMENTO — There is "no foreseeable plan" to merge the Tri-City Mental Health Authority with Los Angeles County mental health programs, Pomona Mayor Ray J. Lepire reported here.

Leipre made the comment following a meeting with Dr. William Keating, program manager with the California State Department of Mental Health.

Pomona Valley officials had expressed concern over the future of Tri-City after the state assembly last year directed the health department to do a study on the relationship between mental health services provided in municipally operated programs and county-operated programs.

Tri-City is administered by the cities of Pomona, Claremont and La Verne. Most of the authority's funds are provided by the state.

During Thursday's meeting, Lepire said Dr. Keating indicated Tri-City was considered a "very effective municipally administered program."

Also attending the meeting were Claremont Mayor Bertye Smith and representatives of Tri-City and the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Lepire, accompanied by chamber officials, met earlier in the day with Creg Harding, community assistance officer for planning and management, State Department of Housing and Community Development.

Lepire said Pomona was encouraged to apply for funds for 1975-76 to assist in community development needs of Pomona and the Valley Association of Cities.

City and chamber officials also met with Phil Crawford, assistant deputy director for operations, Department of Employment Development, and Mark Sanders, exective secretary, California Manpower Planning Council.

Lepire said state officials indicated they would cooperate fully with the cities of Pomona, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, Walnut and Diamond Bar in developing an area-wide manpower profile plan to qualify for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds from Los Angeles County to the tune of about $1 million for a 12-month period.

Lepire said he was given to understand that on July 1, $30,000 would be made available in Emergency Employment Act-Public Employment Program funds to be used by VAC in dealing with the problem of abandoned housing.

Weekly antique column for Progress-Bulletin

"Antique Wise," a question-and-answer column about yesterday's ageless and valuable works of art and fine craftsmanship, will start Sunday and appear each week in the Progress-Bulletin.

With thousands upon thousands of individuals collecting, buying, selling, or simply admiring the classic lines of old furniture, bric-a-brac and various objects d'art, interest in antiques is at an all-time high throughout the nation.

DOROTHY HAMMOND

"Antique Wise" will have special appeal to everyone who ever wondered about the age, origin, or value of a family heirloom.

Dorothy Hammond brings years of expertise and knowledge in antique lore to her "Antique Wise" column. Here, she will answer readers' questions and invite them to submit photos or drawings of an item about which they are curious.

"Unfortunately, only those illustrations that are sharp and suitable for publication will be used," she advises, "and they cannot be returned."

Mrs. Hammond is an artist as well as a collector of antiques. A professional writer for many years, she has had several childrens books published and is a regular contributor to leading national magazines, especially in the antique field.

"My interest in antiques is simply an outgrowth of my upbringing as my parents were always interested in fine art glass," explains Mrs. Hammond, who is a graduate of Maryville State Teachers College with a degree in home economics and art.

Mrs. Hammond now resides in Wichita, Kan. where her husband, Robert, is vice president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank.

Books published by Mrs. Hammond include "Confusing Collectibles," "Moustache Cups, Their History and Marks," "Collectible Advertising Mementoes of Times Past," and "Price Guide to Paper Americana."

Chino welcomes new industry

CHINO — A ceremony by state, county and local officials today welcomed the new $4 million industrial plant of Bandag, Inc.

The plant, now half completed, is expected to open in November and employ about 150 persons. The 14-acre site is located at the corner of Edison and Monte Vista avenues.

Scheduled to attend the ceremony this afternoon were Chino Mayor Bob McLeod, San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend, and Fred Ricci, manager of the Business and Industry Development Department of the state Department of Commerce.

Charles E. Edwards, senior vice president of Bandag, led a tour of the facility.

Bandag is headquartered in Muscatine, Iowa. The company was formed in 1957 and specializes in a unique method of retreading and is a leading international manufacturer of precured tread rubber and equipment.

In addition to the new Chino facility and home office in Iowa, the company operates manufacturing facilities in Texas, North Carolina, Quebec, Can., Belgium, and South Africa.

Company sales in 1973 totaled more than $95 million, with net earnings of more than $12 million.

Apprentice in iron work gets back checks from VA

I hope you can help me in getting some action with the Veterans Administration as you have done for many others in the past.

My husband has been entitled to benefits under on-the-job training as an apprentice in iron work.

It took us from 1970 to 1972 to get the VA to straighten out the mess so we could receive benefits from June 1970 to April 1972.

Since that time I have filled out several forms to send to each of my husband's employers for verification of hours worked for each month from the end of April 1972 to June 1973.

My husband received a check for payment through September 1972. Since I sent the cards all at one time to cover the entire period, I don't understand why we haven't been paid for the entire period.

I called the VA regional office in Los Angeles. After I explained the situation to some man, he assured me we would receive either an answer or check within a couple of weeks.

That was over two months ago. We have heard nothing.— Mrs. T.S., Chino.

It took two Action Line letters to the VA and nearly two months' time but you finally received a $700 hardship check.

SEASONAL WARNINGS

Approaching vacation months prompt us to publish warnings in connection with attempts to store gasoline.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, a federal agency, reports that last year 13,500 gasoline-related injuries required hospital emergency room treatment.

Treatment for swallowing gasoline was given to 5,100 persons. Half of these were children under 5.

If you must keep a small amount of gasoline on hand, using the proper container and following a few safety rules can avert a tragedy.

Safety cans for storage outside automobiles should NOT be carried in a motor vehicle. These cans are designed to vent fumes to the outside—fumes which might easily ignite in a car.

Use only vapor-tight cans which have the approval of the fire department. When filling a can, allow enough space for the fuel to expand with temperature changes. Cans should be labeled "flammable" or "gasoline."

Never store gasoline or other fuel inside the house or in the basement.

Never store gasoline near open flames, pilot lights, stoves, heaters, electric mowers or any other sources of ignition or sparks.

Never use gasoline near an open flame. Never smoke near gasoline.

Keep gasoline, kerosene and other fuels and polishes out of the reach of children.

Avoid repeated or prolonged skin contact with gasoline and avoid breathing fuel vapors.

Avoid careless use of gasoline when cleaning clothing, paint brushes, exterminating insects, priming caburetors and starting or feeding fires.

If a child or adult swallows gasoline (one of the dangers of siphoning) call a doctor or other medical help immediately. Do not try to get the person to vomit.

If you are in doubt about the safety of a container, check with your local fire officials.

I ordered a ballpoint pen which also is supposed to serve as a flashlight but is absolutely useless for the latter purpose.

The company has never responded to my letter about this problem. — Mrs. J. K., La Verne

We wrote to the company and were informed that a replacement had been sent to you. Since you apparently did not receive it, a second replacement was being sent.

You got the second replacement. It worked. By studying it and working with the original pen, you succeeded in getting it to operate also.

You therefore paid for the replacement proving that there are places where the light of integrity has not dimmed.

Punishment in search of a crime

My object all sublime
I shall achieve in time—
To let the punishment fit the crime—
The punishment fit the crime.
— The Mikado, Act II

The members of the House Judiciary Committee might well wish that their task were as simple as that of Gilbert and Sullivan's musical dispenser of justice.

The punishment hanging over the head of Richard M. Nixon is clearly stated in the Constitution: removal from office.

The problem facing the committee, as it deliberates whether or not to recommend the impeachment and subsequent trial of the 37th President of the United States, is quite the opposite of the Mikado's — to find the crime, or crimes, to fit the constitutionally mandated punishment.

Unfortunately, the nation's basic document, as in so many others matters, is "concisely vague" as to what offenses merit the punishment of impeachment and removal. It specifies "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

Treason and bribery seem plain enough, but from what is known of the evidence in the hands of the committee, neither of these offenses — certainly not the first — will be cited in any impeachment recommendation sent to the House of Representatives.

It is the latter two that have generated reams of legal argument and no end of discussion and speculation.

What is a high crime? What is a misdemeanor? Do they embrace a generalized finding that Richard Nixon failed to "faithfully execute the office of President of the United States," as required by his oath of office? Or must there be evidence of an actual crime committed by him for which he would be indictable by a civil court?

Statements from the White House and arguments advanced by the President's lawyer, James St. Clair, leave no doubt that the President's defense is, and will be, based on the latter interpretation. No matter what unsavory aspects of the President's character may have been revealed by the Watergate tape transcripts, no matter what actions he may have contemplated with his advisors in the Oval Office, unless there is clear evidence that he did in fact break the law, he cannot be impeached.

Opponents of this interpretation argue that this would place a president wholly beyond accountability for his performance in office between elections, and that this could not have been the intent of the framers of the Constitution. Impeachment, they emphasize, is not a legal remedy for criminal behavior by a civil officer of the United States but a political remedy for misfeasance or malfeasance.

However, the Constitution also specifies that any party removed from office through impeachment and conviction "shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law."

A good case can be made that this indicates that the framers had in mind that an impeachable offense must be one that would warrant subsequent civil action.

To ordinary Americans, of course, all this is rarified lawyers' disputation over definitions. To a growing number, the President stands convicted by his own words of, at the very least, a grave breach of faith with the people who overwhelmingly appointed him to his high office.

The punishment they want for Richard Nixon is not in doubt. The question is, will the House Judiciary Committee find the crime to fit it?

We shall soon know the answer.

Fatal myth

The American myth that "hard work, dedication and self-sacrifice automatically leads to happiness and joy" just isn't true. More often "it leads to severe depression, heart disease, impotence and premature death."

That is the edict of a San Jose State University psychology professor, Dr. Bruce C. Ogilvie. He warns that millions of Americans are succumbing to "the epidemic of our time—stress."

Dr. Ogilvie feels that the stressful trend in American life has become almost an addiction to many, who don't realize they are paying for success with their lives.

"Society reveres productivity as its greatest value," he says. "It's the American way of life. And it's fast becoming the American way to die. Once you get caught up in that quest for achievement (and it starts with our children) you march blindly to your early death or, perhaps worse, suffer through a half-lived life."

What to do? Dr. Ogilvie and others plan to establish this summer a non-profit research center at Squaw Valley, the Institute for the Development of the Whole Person. A pilot program involving a group of San Francisco Bay Area executives will put his theories of life style into actual practice. The idea, the psychologist says, is not to turn a super successful executive into a robot, but to convince him not to take any more steps "toward nonexistence," by emphasizing the "worth-whileness of being a human being."

Someone long ago put it: "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Substitute "dead" for "dull" and you are close to Dr. Ogilvie's premise.

Papers reveal Hughes' eccentricities

WASHINGTON — We have obtained Xerox copies of the Howard Hughes papers, which the Watergate burglars had planned to steal from the safe of Las Vegas publisher Hank Greenspun.

The two-inch thick stash of documents, most of them in Hughes' own hand scrawl, add little to what is already known about the undercover relationship between the reclusive billionaire and President Nixon.

But the papers offer a fascinating self-portrait of America's celebrated mystery man. From his memos, Hughes is revealed as an eccentric tycoon, obsessed with secrecy, who hatched multimillion-dollar power grabs and thought he could manipulate the nation's political leaders.

From 1966 to 1970, he ruled his financial empire from the guarded penthouse of a Las Vegas hotel-casino, communicating with his executives by memo and telephone. He wouldn't let his wife near him then mourned the breakup of their marriage, blaming it upon an innocent aide.

We reported a small part of the story in August 1971, after getting hold of a dozen handwritten Hughes memos. We wrote that Hughes ordered aides to offer financial backing to both presidential candidates in the 1968 election. But he expected Richard Nixon to win "under our sponsorship and supervision," as Hughes put it, "every inch of the way."

The billionaire also had cash to spare for the most lowly politician who might be in a position to help the Hughes interest. After typical instructions from Hughes, his former top hand, Robert Mahue, once reassured him: "As to the political leaders in Los Angeles, Howard, we take very good care of them throughout the year."

Hughes plunged into each new financial scheme with a passion. "Please clear the decks and fasten your seat belt," he scribbled to Maheu on April 19, 1968, "because I have a blockbuster." It was a plan to trade the Stardust for the International Hotel in Las Vegas.

The memos show that Hughes often became so absorbed with his schemes that he lost all track of day and night. "I suppose you know I have not been to sleep at all," he wrote Maheu on April 24, 1968. "So I am going to sit up now until we hear something."

This phantom billionaire repeatedly insisted upon total secrecy. He diidn't want "the most microscopic chance of the slightest hint being accidentally dropped to anyone," stressed a typical memo. Another time, he declared that his informants "put their very lives in jeopardy with some of the disclosures they make to me, and if they thought this information went to anybody—no matter whom—they would not continue to inform me."

Hughes kept his last wife, movie actress Jean Peters, on a yo-yo string. He would disappear for long stretches and send her endearing but false messages through his aide William Gay. Once he directed aides to rent a motel suite on the Mojave Desert and installed private telephones for the sole purpose of convincing his wife he was out on the desert. Yet all the time, he was only a few miles from their Belaire, Calif. home, watching endless movies and eating chocolate bars at a private studio.

In 1965, he promised to have Thanksgiving dinner with her. But because of his fear of germs, he told her to sit across the room from him. She walked out in a huff.

The following year, he persuaded her to join him in Boston where he promised they would settle down. But again, he kept her at across-the-room distance. She put up with it for three days.

But when the marriage broke up, he blamed Gay who had merely carried the messages back and forth. Hughes complained bitterly: "Bill's total indifference and laxity to my pleas for help in my domestic area, voiced urgently to him, week by week through the past 7 to 8 years, have resulted in a complete, I am afraid irrevocable loss of my wife. I am sorry but I blame Bill completely for this unnecessary debacle."

Maheu tried to defend Gay, contending: "Bill Gay came forward when everyone else collapsed and was ready to protect you to the hilt." But Hughes complained angrily from his hermitage atop the hotel-casino: "I thought that when we came here, and I told you not to invite Bill up here and not to permit him to be privy to our activities, you had realized that I no longer trusted him."

For that matter, the memos show that the relationship between Hughes and Maheu was stormy. Most of their quarrels were over petty matters. A clash over office space, for example, brought Maheu to the brink of resigning in early February 1968.

"Last week," wrote Maheu in a "Very Conf." note to the industrialist, "you mentioned to me that there are times you get the feeling that I think you have been in this world for 12 years instead of 62. I sometimes get the feeling that you think I am still in my mother's womb rather than being 50 years of age."

But the quarrels would end in reconciliation, with expressions of fidelity to one another. On May 6, 1968, Hughes wrote to his subordinate:

"Now, Bob, it is my intention to remove as many as possible of the irritating features of our relationship. In this connection, I have decided not to ask you to write me any more messages in longhand and sealed envelopes. I know this is time consuming for you, and my men think I don't trust them. So, in the future except in rare instances, I prefer you dictate your reply to my messages via telephone and whichever of my men happens to be on duty."

Two years later the two men broke up and they are fighting out their differences in court. William Gay, on the other hand, is now a trusted member of Hughes' entourage.

Footnote: On February 3, 1972, the New York Times reported that the flamboyant publisher, Hank Greenspun, had the Hughes papers stashed in his safe. The next day at a meeting in then Attorney General John Mitchell's office, Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy was instructed to study the possibility of breaking into the safe. The Watergate team never carried out his plan to burglarize Greenspun's safe and escape across the border in a waiting Howard Hughes plane. Senate investigators believe the White House was afraid the Hughes memos might contain evidence of his $100,000 cash gift to the President through Bebe Rebozo.

LUCKY LUCKMAN: A mysterious, handwritten note, initialed by embattled Veterans Administrator Donald Johnson, directs that all the Veterans Administration's architectural contracts in California should be awarded to a Los Angeles engineering firm.

We have obtained a copy of the terse, handwritten order, which declares: "All A-E work in California (except Loma Linda) until further notice is to Luckman & Associates." The document is dated 12-17-71.

The instructions, according to our investigation, were not obeyed. At least six other contract awards have gone to firms other than Luckman since the memo was written. But Luckman landed by far the largest VA contracts in California, totalling just under $3 million.

Through a VA spokesman, Johnson said he had no specific recollection of the memo but did not deny its existence. Still, any charge of favoritism, he declared, was "untrue."

Jim Luckman, commenting on behalf of the firm, said it had been awarded the big-money contracts because of previous "efficient and economical" work for the VA. Of the Johnson memo, Luckman said wryly: "I wish it were true."

Informed sources suggest that Johnson, an intensely partisan Nixon man, may have been influenced by the political support the firm's head, Charles Luckman, has given to President Nixon. Luckman, the former boy wonder of the Lever Brothers soap empire, contributed $13,000 to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

Women threaten male stronghold

The women are coming! The women are coming! If all the women running for public office this year get elected they could tilt the legislative seesaw either direction. The Republicans are in trouble; the Democrats are disorganized.

One in nine new voters in California is expressing his opposition to both mainline parties by registering "independent." In 1972, 1,028 women ran for public office; 488 won. Less than half.

Historically, political parties tend to nominate women in hopeless races. Usually, a woman candidate will receive less party support in terms of money and doorbell ringers. Nonetheless, 488 women won.

This year, with politics per se in such gross disarray; with Republican leadership scuttled by scandal; with the opposition's leading candidate, Sen. Ted Kennedy, haunted by scandal, 50 women have filed for Senate, House and governors' races in 15 states. And a n Eagleton Institute Survey in scandalized New Jersey indicates that 63 per cent of the voters would back a woman running for President!

Exposure of corruption in government always tends to favor the outs over the ins. Nobody's been left further "out" of mainstream politics than women. For all their increasing acceptance in political circles, there are now no women in the U.S. Senate and only 16 women in the House half of Congress — and 4 of those are not candidates for re-election.

There is now no woman governor in the United States. But this year one is a candidate for governor of Connecticut — Ella Grasso — and she's leading in the polls.

Sissy Farenthold is going to run for governor of Texas. Betty Roberts will try for governor of Oregon. Louise Gore in scandalized Maryland.

Women will seek Senate seats in South Dakota and Florida.

Altoghether, this year 3,000 women will seek city, state or national office — three times the number who ran two years ago.

Liz Carpenter, co-founder of the National Women's Political Caucus, says, "Watergate has stepped up the influx of women candidates; many who would not have run otherwise will now."

At present, 7 per cent of all our state legislators are women. By the end of this year perhaps 10 per cent will be. And every study of women incumbents in political office affirms that women are "less politically oriented, more issue oriented."

As of now, anyway, they are less likely than men are to be led astray by greed for either money or power.

Gossip for today

If you are as old as I am you can remember way back to that ancient era when men would be admonished: "Watch your language, there are women present!" —But that, of course, was in the good old days before some liberated woman's rightist would start shouting, "Sex discrimination", and accuse you of being a male chauvinist pig for making such a statement. According to today's liberated women, even "expletive deleted" is a bit old fashioned.

However it is interesting to see how what is now good for the goose is also good for the gander. That "sex discrimination" accusation is fast becoming a two-edged sword. —A dance hall which admitted women free is being sued on the grounds that such a practice discriminates against the male sex.—And would you believe it? Rather than run the risk of getting involved in the "sex discrimination" hassle, The League of Women Voters is now admitting men to its membership.

Chemical shortage adds to oil crisis

WASHINGTON — To talk about oil prospects instead of Watergate may not offer Americans much comfort. Especially when fresh reports suggest that the immediate oil future (1974-80) may be less cheerful than some earlier surveys have indicated.

In reporting on the oil situation since last October's Middle East war suddenly put it in the "crisis" arena, I have sought consistently to deal in the hard practicalities of proved reserves and reasonable estimates of additional supplies. I consciously avoided the morass of conflicting arguments over profits, diverted supplies, shifting refinery practices, etc.

The bad news today is that there is no good news.

The only place to start is with the realities of the moment. By the most optimistic judgment, this nation's proven oil reserves are put at around 40 billion barrels, including some 10 billion in Alaska's still-developing North Slope.

That basic stock could be added to somewhat by new discoveries in continental areas which oil geologists consider promising. Some exploration is under way, but it is severely handicapped.

First, off, the widened search requires, for the most part, drilling deeper than is customary, and farther from inhabited sectors. The increased cost involved is obvious. And no one is offering really solid guesses as to how much new oil might thus be added to our established reserves.

Nor is that the end of it. New drilling demands much new equipment—most importantly, big supplies of steel pipe. And that vital pipe is in short supply, with steel mills unable to meet more than a fraction of the rising demand.

So much for that aspect. Some weeks ago I reported that hopeful new recovery techniques applied to already existing wells might add some 55 billion barrels to our recoverable stocks of oil. The figure stands today as still valid, but the immediacy of the promise has diminished.

In the oil world, the methods I then referred to are known as "tertiary recovery." They are sophisticated, still experimental techniques which go beyond the primary recovery of natural flow (assisted of course by accompanying gas pressures), and the secondary recovery promoted by the common practice of water-flooding.

An article in the fall, 1973 issue of World Oil magazine states: "Secondary recovery has reached maturity, with water-flooding the most used method . . . But even after prudent flooding, most oil discovered in a field will be left in the ground."

It is at this point, of course, that "Tertiary" techniques take on major significance. What is involved?

Essentially, this means a developing practice of "flushing out" additional crude oil by forcing detergent-style chemicals through porous, oil-bearing rock strata in established wells.

Short of such techniques, the average well is yielding only about 31 per cent of its oil. With such methods, recovery might rise to 50 per cent or a bit more.

Now, however, comes a new hobbling factor. Though the industry is said to be spending about $25 million yearly on tertiary recovery research, in the end, the hope in such methods rests upon the availability of the quiet special flushing chemicals required to force out added oil. And, sadly, we now learn that THEY are in desperately short supply.

Some new plants for production of these needed detergents are under way. But their projected output falls far, far short of the volume required to realize the full promise of tertiary techniques.

To put the matter with brutal coldness, the present shortage and the evident slow development outlook for these vital flushing chemicals takes the bright gleam off the hope that some early relief might be won in the domestic oil supply picture.

We can shelve the dream that by the magic of tertiary recovery, America can rather quickly possess itself of another 55 billion barrels of proven crude and thus ease its oil outlook in the years just ahead—before the more distant prospects of more offshore oil, synthetic crude, and wholly different sources of energy become realities.

The hard-to-swallow truth is that chemical and other shortages put that 55-billion-barrel dream almost as far off as all our more distant hopes.

"Essentially, we're confronted with making a molehill out of a mountain . . ."

La Verne hoping to rid area of mounds

LA VERNE — City Manager George Caswell is looking for the best way to get rid of mounds of dirt that have been piled up at a citrus grove behind Grace Miller School.

He can insist that owner Jim Jochimson move it; he can have Jochimson cited for creating an "attractive nuisance" that draws young children; or he can have the city level the mounds and charge the owner for the work.

Mothers who live near the grove claim that the high mounds hide the rest of the grove from view, and as a result they are an invitation for trouble.

"We're afraid that one day real soon, some child will be taken bodily behind the mounds and molested," Mrs. Curtis Belknap of 3343 Winterhaven Drive told the City Council this week. "I don't want to wait that long."

Mrs. Myrna McAlister of 3314 Benton Ave. said the parents "have been sitting very patiently for more than a year, saying nothing about the situation. But I don't think we should stand by any longer."

Caswell said he had contacted Jochimson and was told that the mounds were part of a housing project now under way, and would be moved "very, very soon."

But that was not enough for the council. Caswell was instructed to look into how the nuisance could be abated right now, and report back by the end of the month.

City hall splits council

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Controversy over a site for a new city hall is expected to come to a head soon, if factions on both sides can be believed.

City Councilmen figure to discuss the issue in upcoming budget hearings, and the split that normally occurs on that body seems ready to appear again.

Councilmen Richard Laughter and William Wentworth and Mayor Joe Dyer generally are expected to favor a new civic center in an undeveloped area, while Councilmen Robert Lovemark and William Cotten, their usual opponents, may find the project more than they care for.

The split came into full public view in the recent council election, and Lovemark claims a site for a new city hall was the key issue. Coffen and Lovemark wanted the civic center developed at Winnett Ranch, which was under discussion for possible purchase by the city.

The other three councilmen seemed to favor a new city hall, however, rather than conversion of the ranch house on the Winnett property.

Laughter and Wentworth, members of a two-man civic center committee, talk in glowing terms now of a new city hall, but are evasive as to possible sites. Laughter makes it plain he considers Winnett a dead issue.

"The ranch was kicked out for environmental reasons," he said. "Final feasibility report on the property said it would have positive impact."

Laughter added the ranch house at Winnett was "not a unique building. You could get a new building at the same price of upgrading the old house."

"I'd like to see a new city hall built within the next fiscal year," he continued, "and I expect the issue to be raised in budget sessions coming up."

He affirmed it doesn't have to be a "major complex" but the building should be "somewhat serviceable."

He added the city has the reserve funds available for the project.

Although there has been talk of a site on Brea Canyon Road, Laughter said the city hall wouldn't necessarily have to be built there.

The county tentatively approved a site at Brea Canyon and La Puente Road two years ago for a new library, and since then the possibility of placing the city hall there has been raised.

Wentworth, likewise, did not disclose any particular site he would favor for the city hall. "I don't even know if we can afford to build one in the next year."

He said the city has been considering a new civic building for six years. "It's an ongoing thing." Wentworth did add that he expects a decision on the site to be made within a year.

"But when I think of a civic center, I feel it should be more than one building, on the same site." Several county offices could be located there, he added, along with a library and possible sheriff's substation.

Lovemark, however, would oppose a new city hall, and indicates the project would be too costly. He said it would run around $500,000, and "I don't believe the city can afford it in an undeveloped area."

"I'm not resigned to the fact of getting a spanking new city hall," he added.

A strong backer of the Winnett Ranch project, Lovemark stated the city "could have had an 80-acre park and a city hall for the same amount of money as a new civic building."

"It's purely asinine to buy property for a city hall in the middle of an undeveloped area."

Nurses get briefings on cancer cases

Nursing personnel from hospitals throughout the Pomona Valley are attending a two-month course on the care of the cancer patient, "Cancer Update '74."

Five two-hour sessions are being offered in "Basic Concepts and Prevalence of Cancer," "Myths and Quackery," "The Nurse, the Doctor and the Patient," "Coping with the Disease," "Living with a Grave Prognosis," "Aids in Supporting New Body Image" and "Community Resources."

The course, sponsored by the Northeast Los Angeles County Unit of the American Cancer Society, is being held at Pomona Valley Hospital on Wednesday evenings. Identical courses are also in progress at hospitals in Las Angeles and Arcadia.

Pomona College plans memorial for 129 of its 'family' who died

CLAREMONT — The memory of 129 deceased members of the Pomona College "family" who died during the past year will be honored at a Memorial Day convocation at 5 p.m. Monday.

The ceremony, which will be held in Memorial Court, located between Bridges Hall and Sumner Hall on the campus, is open to the public.

Among the 129 persons whose services to the college will be recalled are Dr. Frederick Ludwig Mulhauser Jr., professor of English at Pomona College, and Dr. Philip A. Munz, retired Pomona College professor and founder of the college's herbarium.

Staff members who have died during the past year are Hugh Pfleiderer, head custodian; Dolly P. Haugh, secretary to Dean Jean B. Walton; and Gene Forrester, secretary to Thomas D. Holland, director, campus planning and maintenance.

Two students who died this year also will be honored. They are Richard Koehler, Portland, Ore., class of '76, and Katherine C. Mankey, Glastonburg, Conn., class of '74.

The traditional program will open with the playing of Pucell's "Chacony in G Minor" by the Pomona College String Orchestra, under the direction of Giora G. Bernstein. Lawrence "Doug" Johnson, a junior from Yellow Springs, Ohio, and co-president of the Associated Students of Pomona College, 1974-75, will give a scripture reading.

The Pomona College Glee Clubs, accompanied by the String Orchestra, with William F. Russell, conductor, will sing "Psalm 121 — I Lift Mine Eyes," by Shutz, and a reading of necrology will be given by Dr. David Alexander, president of the college. The String orchestra will then play "Air from the Suite in D Major" by Bach.

Memorials will be decorated by a group of Pomona College women students, and Dr. J. Gordon Verplank, chaplain of The Claremont Colleges, will lead a prayer. Alan Treibitz, a senior from Elizabeth, N.J., will close the program with "Taps."

'Gentleman's jail' in country provided for special federal prisoners

By TOM TIEDE

ALLENWOOD, Pa. (NEA) —At this stage it is of course not known whether President Nixon will be impeached by the House, convicted by the Senate and removed from office. And it is seldom even contemplated that he might further be charged by civil authorities, found guilty by the courts and sentenced to pay by incarceration.

But one thing is perfectly clear:

In the unlikely event all of the above did take place, Richard Nixon would not be dragged off to an ordinary can — he would wind up in a "gentleman's jail" such as the quiet, contemplative Federal Prison Camp here in Pennsylvania's central sticks.

The Allenwood camp, just past a golf and country club in a valley of rich soil and straight trees, is one of five minimum security lockups in a federally operated chain of 33 major institutions. And it is a far cry from the chain-gang and cattle-herd pens Edward G. Robinson snarled his way through in the 1940s cinema.

Not even locks

There are no walls here, no bars, not even locks on the inmate doors. Women in mini-skirts visit residents around ice cream tables on a patio; convicts loll in their underwear in the midday sun; there is a sturdy chain fence surrounding the 4-200-acre camp, but its purpose, says Superintendent Max Weager, is not keep people in but out — area residents love to poach the camp's trout-stocked ponds.

All in all it is the kind of prison progressive penologists would like to see house most common criminals. As it is, the federal camp population constitutes only a small and very special percentage of felons.

The bulk of people committing federal crimes end up in maximum security penitentiaries such as Leavenworth or medium security facilities such as Lewisburg (18 miles south of here). A strict screening procedure allows only non-aggressive, mentally stable, criminally unsophisticated "short timers" in the camp settings.

Thus it is that all convicted Watergate personalities have served in the gentlemen's jails. Dirty trickster Donald Segretti spent time at the Lompoc camp in California, former presidential aide, Herb Porter is there now. Four of the original Watergate burglars — Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis — were jailed in the camp at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida until their recent release on bond.

And here at Allenwood, White House plumber Egil Krogh is spending six months' confinement working camp farmland and, say officers, "doing fine, fine."

In the past the populations at federal camps were made up almost exclusively of this kind of distinguished residency (including occasional senators, congressmen and U.S. judges). Actually, the camps were first conceived to accommodate "white collar" criminals, people who did not require maximum security and extensive rehabilitative programming.

The idea was not to make their life more comfortable than other crooks, says a Bureau of Prisons spokesman, but "to cut down on the costs" of incarcerating non-dangerous offenders.

Now this original thinking may be being victimized by new times and circumstances. Federal camps are today receiving fewer white collar felons and more narcotic, draft and "political-radical" violators.

The result is that the simple, inexpensive camps are in some ways beginning to resemble the more traditional prison set-up. Allenwood now has an extensive education program, a counseling service and narcotic programs — thus the cost-per-inmate, says Superintendent Weager, "is probably just about what it is in any other prison."

The comforts of the camp have also come up for an updated reevaluation. The humane rationale has it that prisoners who are treated decently will act decently, yet in practice it doesn't always work out so nicely. Lovely inmate children have sometimes smuggled contraband to their fathers here, moonshine stills are deployed periodically through the countryside, and when Weager tried to establish a "prisoners' council" he had to crush it when it turned "totally combative."

Jail is still jail

No doubt such things happen because, despite frills, jail is still jail. And in some ways, Weager says the liberal camp is harder on residents than an Alcatraz or Attica:

"Some of the men see time here as harder time; the liberty, the lack of restraining measures, the extensive visitation rights create for some more anxiety." One inmate's wife puts it this way: "If he was behind bars he'd resign himself to it. This way, it's like he is almost free, almost out, but not quite. He's frusted as all hell."

The frustration of being "almost free" may account in part for the extraordinarily high number of escape attempts at federal camps. Lompoc averages a couple a week. Allenwood is much better at 15 to 19 a year, but even this rate is deploring when measured against nearby Lewisburg which, says Weager, "hasn't had a successful break-out in decades."

Still, despite disappointments, Allenwood represents the best of an imperfect penal system. Men live in dormitories rather than cramped cells, supervision is minimal, residents move freely from place to place. Though there are some hoary prison regulations in force — no chewing gum — the men have considerable latitude in shaping their time; some, for example, spend extensive periods sitting and reading behind the privacy doors recently installed in some toilet facilities.

Ripe for abuse

A few inmates see the Allenwood system as ripe for abuse. One camp policy, for example, is to allow six days a week visitation privileges, with no time limit between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.; thus, predictably, a few of the cons have moved their ,wives or sweeties into the area and spend all day every day "walking and talking with momma." Besides crowding facilities, such hogging fouls up the camp work schedule.

Yet the majority seem to appreciate the considerations here. And sometimes excessively so. Superintendent Weager remembers one old inmate who had spent most of his life in jail and who was especially taken with the Allenwood arrangement. When the old man finally was released he indicated a hesitancy and confusion. Three hours later he robbed an area bank — perhaps to get back to the comforts of home.

New industrial regulations provide 10-hour workday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Beginning June 1 about five million California workers will have their minimum wages and working conditions regulated by the state Industrial Welfare Commission (IWC).

Previously only women and minors have been subject to the rules of the commission, but this was changed by the 1973 legislature after court challenges on the grounds of preferential treatment.

So the IWC, after a series of hearings, drew up new regulations covering 11 industries and three occupations.

These were promulgated March 14 and on April 24 the Commission denied a total of 28 petitions for rehearing and set June 1 as the effective date for the new rules.

Most controversy centered around a rule allowing a 10hour workday before overtime is paid in most of the covered industries and occupations. The Commission, however, kept the eight-hour day in the canning, freezing and preserving industry and the motion picture industry, except under emergencies and other special conditions.

When the IWC rules applied only to women and minors, overtime pay was mandatory after eight hours work in a single day. It still must be paid for all hours over 40 worked in the same week.

The new orders now cover household workers and do not provide any limitations on hours or overtime for this work or for agricultural occupations.

The new regulations were contained in 14 sets of new orders which set forth those provisions which remained unchanged and then listed changed sections for each industry and occupation.

In general the new regulations apply to hours of work, overtime pay and working conditions and cover such things as providing seats, change rooms, meal periods and rest time.

The 10-hour work day will be permitted in the following industries: manufacturing; personal service; professional, technical, clerical and mechanical and similar occupations; public housekeeping; laundry, linen supply, dry cleaning and dyeing; mercantile; transportation; amusement and recreation; and broadcasting.

The new IWC orders also drop previous requirements for couches in restrooms for all adult workers. Also dropped are most employe health and safety provisions which have been taken over by the California Occupational Safety and Health Act —also as a result of 1973 legislation.

Employers are now required to provide both men and women workers with lockers and a place to change their clothes when the occupation requires changing for work.

The so-called "coffee break," a ten-minute rest period every four hours, is also included in the new IWC orders, but there is a stipulation that employers can substitute an "equivalent personal privilege time."

Workers under 18 years of age are limited under the new orders to eight-hour days and cannot be required to work before 5 a.m. or after 10 p.m. except on nights preceding a non-school day, unless they are enrolled in a state-approved work experience education program.

And the requirement that employers supply uniforms if they want their workers to wear them has been changed to read: "In industries, trades, occupations, and companies where by custom, practice or written agreement, uniforms are not furnished and maintained entirely or in part by the employer, this section shall not invalidate such custom or practice."

Laxalt confirms offer of $500,000 in office

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Former governor Paul Laxalt has confirmed he was offered $500,000 while in office to get a gambling license for a person associated with the underworld.

The offer came from Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, noted Las Vegas oddsmaker and Laxalt said he turned it down immediately.

Both Laxalt and Snyder confirmed a story by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson about the $500,000.

Snyder said, "I ran it by him (Laxalt) and he ran it right out as he always is going to do." He said the person who contacted him directly was an attorney and that the name of the person seeking the license was not mentioned.

"It was a third person affair all the way," said Snyder.

Laxalt also said the name of the person seeking the license was not disclosed.

"They just made a pass at me," Laxalt said. "I told them we weren't running that kind of a ship."

Laxalt said he did not report the incident to gaming officials because he did not consider it to be a serious offer. He said there were no specifics.

Snyder indicated he did not feel there was anything improper in the matter. He said, "I just told Laxalt he could make $500,000 if he could help me with a license. There was no offer of a bribe." He said Laxalt laughed and turned it down.

Laxalt was governor from 1967 to 1971. He said he did not recall just when the offer was made. He is now a hotel-casino owner here and is a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Clarinetist to present free recital

CLAREMONT — Edward Casem, a music student at Claremont Graduate School, will present a program of clarinet masterworks of the Classic, Romantic and Neo-classic eras in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

Casem will play Schumann's "Fantasiestuecke," Three Pieces for Clarinet Solo by Igor Stravinsky, Debussy's "Premiere Rhapsodie" and the Clarinet Quintet by Mozart. He will be assisted by Giana Laputz, piano, and the Leslie I. Harris String Quartet, in residence at Cal State San Bernardino.

The quartet is composed of Armen Turadian, concertmaster of the San Bernardino Symphony and the Palm Springs Symphony; Victoria Shapiro, principal viola in the Redlands Bowl Symphony, Riverside Symphony and San Bernardino Symphony, and Catherine Graff, who has served as cellist with the Royal Philharmonic of The Hague, The Netherlands Chamber Orchestra, The Netherlands Radio Orchestra, and the Claremont Music Festival Symphony.

This recital serves as partial fullfillment toward the requirements for Casem's degree of master of arts in music.

Hatchery's goal: dinner-size fish

NEWPORT, Ore. (UPI) — The production of dinner plate size salmon and trout is the goal of a new private fish hatchery established here recently by Oregon-Aqua Foods.

The facility is located on a 10-acre area and includes 16 pens where salmon and rainbow trout will be raised to one or two pound size, according to market demand. The firm hopes to produce three million pounds of fish a year.

CRIME. The rising crime rate and violence in our communities is alarming! Too many parolled felons return to a life of crime because our prisons have failed to rehabilitate them. Our present system of justice often works to protect the criminal instead of the law abiding citizen.

WELFARE. Welfare programs should be available to those who truly need welfare but should not be a giveaway plan for those who do not want to work or for families who want to make a career out of living free at the expense of the California taxpayer.

COST OF LIVING. The increasing cost of living is of grave concern to all of us. I am particularly concerned about the senior citizens who are forced to live on fixed incomes . . . legislators must seek ways to reduce government spending to hold down inflation.

Defining 'style' is big problem

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The factors which make for style are as elusive as those which create charisma.

We say Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has style. Her late husband, John F. Kennedy, was a president with charisma.

But what the descriptions really imply are hard to put in a few words, even with the help of the dictionary and a panel of experts.

This week I attended a seminar on "What is Style?" and found the experts just about as hard put for a definition as the rest of us would be if asked.

Peter Farb, an author and authority on anthropological linguistics, attempted to define style this way: Every society is set up with options for each to decide. "It's like a bagful of marbles...two levels, one the entire bag, two the individual's choice.

"Style in the United States for instance is different from style in Melanisia."

Farb was one of 10 influentials from the worlds of architecture, the arts, food, fashion, television and movies, and the manufacturing and retail fields who spent a morning hacking the subject at the invitation of William M. Fine, president of Wamsutta Mills. Fine called the session simply "Conversation."

Robert Bendheim, chairman of the board of M. Lowenstein Sons, Inc., of which Wamsutta is a division, came up with these comments on style.

"Not even the dictionary defines style precisely," he said. "Webster's Seventh calls it a mode of expressing thought in language; overall excellence, skill or grace in performance; manner or method of acting or performing...a way in which people of fashionable society dress, speak and conduct themselves.

"For all its elusiveness, style is the vantage point from which we deal with life. Style keeps us civilized in an uncivilized world.

"If style's meaning is elusive, its implications are very real... an understanding of style gives us a clearer understanding of ourselves. To people who deal in tastes and choices, a grasp of the meaning is the brick and mortar of success."

Ed Bacci, of the men's wear firm of Cluett Peabody, thought that style "is a personal thing...one thing certain about it, it changes... sometimes (in fashion) saturation of one style sets about a change, as we've seen in sportswear."

The panel, with Edwin Newman, NBC news correspondent as moderator, also looked into what style might mean in the future.

Roy Amara, president and senior research fellow at the Institute for the Future, thought one of the strongest influences would be technological changes. The role of communications would be vital.

He asked, but did not answer, whether tension in national and world events might lead to more uniformity of style—"or more individual approach?"

John B. Hightower, president of the Associated Councils of the Arts and former director of the Museum of Modern Art, foresaw "more experimentation...a shifting in individual interests."

"Conversation" apparently was more an exchange of ideas rather than conclusions. Newman, summing up the definition of style, as the panelists saw it, used a string of words that included "adventuresomeness, casualness, experimental, flamboyant, mobility (as Americans move about increasingly), craving for convenience and comfort, desire or disdain for material things."

Murders up, suicides down

Where there are a lot of murders, there aren't many suicides, and vice versa. Take Mexico. There in 1966, exactly 18.7 out of every 100,000 people were killed by others, but only 1.6 committed suicide. In West Germany that year, 20 people per 100,000 killed themselves while only 1.3 were murdered.

Is a drinker more apt to get hooked on wine than on any other sort of liquor? If not, how do you account for the fact that the highest incidence of alcoholism is in France, a big wine producer, while the second highest is Chile, another big wine producer?

A porpoise can hear music seven octaves higher than any notes audible to thee and me.

GLASS

If that piece of glass was formed by a lightning strike, it's called a fulgurite. If by a volcanic eruption, it's called obsidian. This comes up because a client asks where man first got the notion to make glass. From one of the foregoing, nobody knows which.

Q. "How many bones in the human face?"
A. Just 14, if you don't count the teeth.

Certainly you know the bald eagle isn't.

If the United Nations were empowered to set a minimum age at which girls worldwide could be married, what should that age be? Delegates actually debated this issue. Most agreed age 15 was about right. Not the Saudi Arabian delegate, however. He claimed a lot of girls are physically mature at age 12, so marriageable.

LETTER X

Already mentioned that X is the most useful letter of the alphabet. Here's poetic proof: "X is the Roman notation for ten . . . X is the mark of illiterate men . . . X in a circle may count as a vote . . . X is a crossing as drivers should note . . . X is for Xmas, a season of bliss . . . X in a letter may account for a kiss . . . X is for Xenon, a curious gas . . . X is a ray of similar class . . . X is for Zerzes, a monarch renowned . . . X is the place where the bodies are found." William A. Ptrakovich told me that.

Writes Berni Robinson: Let's settle this hiccup-cure question. A teaspoonful of sugar, a shot of vinegar, water drunk through a clean handkerchief, just nonsense! What works every time is this: Drink a half a glass of any nonalcoholic liquid, but in small sips, continually swallowing, swallowing, swallowing, without pause. You can drink a gallon, but still hiccup, if you don't follow swallow directly upon swallow."

Get proper info if traveling with pets

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is there any easy way to tell which motels will allow a dog and cat? —K.G.

Dear K.G.: Two ways are:

(1) Call your local automobile association, which is likely to have literature on this subject. (American Automobile Association members may specifically request its book, "Traveling with Pets.")

(2) Write for the book titled "Touring with Towser", available from Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

DEAR DR. MLLER: My son just bought a turtle which he insists is safe because it's certified. I have read all about the salmonella hazard of turtles so I didn't want him to have one. Just what does it mean when a turtle is certified? Is it really safe?—B.T.

Dear B.T.: Certified turtles are those which are tested—a process requiring from two to four weeks—and found to be free of salmonella and Arizona organisms, both of which can cause intestinal infections in humans. Certified turtles are, as is to be expected, clean, safe pets. They still need good care to be healthy and they need good housekeeping to remain free of disease (which could be transmittable to humans). If certified turtles are kept with others who were not, they can, of course, become infected.

A certified turtle certainly could be ill from some other cause including as is often the case, malnutrition. It's up to the prospective owner to learn how to take care of such a pet and to follow through to keep it not only clean but in a favorable environment and adequately fed. fed.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is it possible for a child who has had tuberculosis to have given it to our dog?—F.O.

Dear F.O.: While dogs are quite resistant to tuberculosis, heavy exposure may result in infection. Certainly your veterinarian should be informed of such a possibility. He would want to keep close track of the dog and possibly do some laboratory work in a search for tubercular organisms even if the dog was apparently healthy—though tuberculosis tests in the dog are, unfortunately, not highly reliable.

Suit dismissed—Indy gets green light

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — From a legal standpoint, the green light flashed today for Sunday's running of the rich Indianapolis "500." Now it's up to the weatherman to cooperate.

The Speedway classic's 33-car starting field got the go-ahead signal when a judge ruled Thursday against efforts to halt the million-dollar chase because five owners did not get a chance to have their cars qualified.

Damage suits against the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Corp. remained and there were indications the five owners will press their case. They seek more than $1 million for "breach of contract."

Preparations for the race were completed at the Speedway with three-hour carburetion tests honing the engines to a highly competitive edge.

Thousands of spectators paid a dollar each to watch the zooming cars. Two of them got more than they bargained for when an exploding turbocharger of Bob Harkey's car scattered bits of metal like shrapnel. One man was cut near the mouth and another had his finger slashed by a whirling piece of casing.

Johnny Rutherford, last year's pole sitter relegated to the ninth row this Sunday when he ran afoul of a United States Auto Club time qualification rule, toured a lap in the top time of 193.424 miles an hour.

Marion County Superior Judge Frank A. Symmes Jr., following two days of testimony, dismissed the threat against the race on a defense motion that the plaintiffs failed to exhaust all remedies available to them after they were denied a protest seeking extension of the time trials last Saturday.

The owners' alternative, before going to court, was to appeal to a board of judges.

Eleven cars were left standing at the starting line when the rain-shortened qualifying runs ended. Their owners' protest was denied by the USAC and IMS on grounds one car "broke the qualifying line" when it was presented for qualifications a second time.

Since a full field of 33 cars plus two alternates was achieved by the time the trials ended, officials ruled that qualifications were over.

The protest involved a car qualified by rookie Johnny Parsons of Indianapolis, son of the 1959 race winner.

Car owner Carl Gehlhausen testified Thursday Parsons' car was pushed ahead of his own to be qualified and that he and other owners were assured by a USAC official that their machines would all get a chance to make the field. However, rain cut into the time allotted for the trials and the 11 cars never got a chance to qualify.

Gehlhausen's testimony was echoed by that of Marvin Webster, Mill Valley, Calif., who said had he known May 11, when the trials opened, that his car wouldn't get a chance to qualify the following week, "I would have gone home."

Rookie driver Eldon Rasmussen, Indianapolis, owner of his entry, said he spent "more than $100,000" to get the car ready.

"Our understanding was we qualify until everyone has one attempt," he said. "We were in line to be qualified and had no previous indications we would not be allowed to qualify."

Lindsey Hopkins, Miami, a member of USAC's board of directors, said the non-qualified cars should have received a chance-even if it meant one of his three cars already in the field would be bumped. He also testified he read the disputed rule eight times "and I still don't understand it.

Dodgers victims of Giants' rally

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants couldn't have picked a more opportune time to hold a team meeting.

Here they were floundering at two games over .500 with the front-running Los Angeles Dodgers in town and threatening to make a shambles of the National League West race.

So, at the behest of Tito Fuentes and Chris Speier, team leader Bobby Bonds called the meeting Thursday night before the Giants went out to meet the Dodgers in the first game of a four-game series.

According to Bonds, the meeting proved the tonic the Giants needed to shake themselves, which they did a few hours later by rallying for four runs in the seventh inning for a 7-6 victory.

"We got a lot of things off our chest," said Bonds. "Nearly everyone on the club participated and in general we agreed that we were too good a team to be playing the way we were." were."

Bonds said the main criticism was that too many players were trying to carry the load as individuals.

"We decided that if every man does his own particular job the best he can," explained Bonds, "then we would be all right. The fact the Dodgers were in town had something to do with calling the meeting. Heck, we couldn't have picked a better time."

The Giants were down 6-3 to unbeaten Andy Messersmith when they mounted their winning rally Thursday night.

A walk to Bonds, his third of the game, and singles by Garry Maddox and Steve Ontiveros netted one run and chased Messersmith. Mike Marshall, the Dodgers' ace reliever appearing in a game for the seventh straight day, came on and the bases became loaded on a little tap to third by Gary Matthews.

A high popup behind second into a stiff wind by Dave Kingman fell in for a single as a second run scored and then an infield out and a single by Dave Rader scored two more.

Kingman hit a solo homer for another Giant run while red-hot Steve Garvey drove in three of the Dodgers' runs with his ninth and 10th homers and now has 30 RBIs, second only in the NL to teammate Jim Wynn's 41.

Marshall took the loss while Elias Sosa won in relief and now is 5-0. Randy Moffitt, with two shutout relief innings, picked up his ninth save.

The victory still left the Giants eight games behind the Dodgers, who now have lost only three of their last 16 starts.

Dodger skipper Walter Alston was philosophical about the loss.

"We need a game like this once in a while," he said, "to prove winning isn't all that easy."

Ryan stymies Royals again

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Hohum, Nolan Ryan beat the Kansas City Royals again.

This time it was a four-hitter and a 3-1 victory for the California Angels.

Ryan now has an 8-1 career record against the Royals and the only time he lost was in 1972 when Amos Otis stole home in a 1-0 game. Ryan had a two-hitter in that one.

"It's just that some clubs you have better luck against them than others," Ryan (6-4) shrugged Thursday night. "It's just one of those things. Really, you have to bear down on them as much or more than most clubs. The middle of their lineup is awfully strong. They've got six or seven good hitters."

Bruce DalCanton, 2-2, absorbed the loss but he matched Ryan pitch for pitch until the seventh when he walked Paul Schaal and Ellie Rodriguez to start the inning. They moved up on a sacrifice and Joe Hoerner replaced Dal Canton, although he had yielded only two hits. Mickey Rivers delivered a run-scoring single and Bobby Valentine had a sacrifice fly, scoring Rodriquez with the winning run.

La Verne opens Area One Playoffs

Leo coach alters pitching rotation

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LEWISTON, IDAHO — La Verne College coach Ben Hines has revised his pitching rotation.

After watching host school Lewis-Clark State start a lineup that included six lefthanded hitters against Linfield College of Oregon in Thursday's opening round of the NAIA Area One playoffs, Hines announced the change for today's doubleheader.

Robb Mayhew (8-3) was slated to face LCS in the first game of the twinbill. John Verhoeven (11-1) was scheduled to pitch the second game against Linfield. Hines had previously picked Verhoeven and Dan Quisenberry to pitch today.

Lewis-Clark State, now 28-21 overall, will counter with righthhander Paul Sinclair (5-1), a 6-0, 180-pound senior. Linfield coach Al Rutschman was uncertain of his selection and said he will reach a decision after today's first game.

Rutschman said he is considering Jeff Zimmerman, a 6-0, 175-pound junior with a 5-2 mark and Dick Cahill, the Wildcats' best pitcher.

Cahill, a lefty, is now 9-1 after picking up the win in relief Thursday as Linfield came from behind to edge LCS, 5-4 on rightfielder Dan Waritz' two-run homer in the ninth inning.

It might not have been as close except for a freak play in the Lewis-Clark sixth inning. Linfield was sailing along with a 2-0 lead at the time. But a single, sacrifice, and two walks loaded the bases against Linfield starter Don Rutschman, the coach's son.

LCS tried a suicide squeeze play. Rutschman made a good pitch to Lewis-Clark catcher Bill Settle. Settle, trying to bunt, hit a little pop fly that fell on the pitcher's mound behind Rutschman who was rushing toward home plate on the bunt attempt.

Rutschman would have caught it easily had he stayed on the mound. The first base runner was nearly at second base when the ball hit and he would have been doubled easily to end the inning.

Instead, a run scored. Seconds later, third baseman Bert Haas, a .250 hitter during the regular season, singled in two more runs to put Lewis Clark State ahead, 3-2.

Linfield tied it in the seventh. An error, Waritz' single ,a wal kand a fielder's choice was all the Wildcats needed.

LCS went out in front again, 4-3, in the eighth inning. Back-to-back doubles by first baseman Jim Dompier and Settle turned the trick.

Waritz, the Linfield rightfielder, seemed uncertain on each hit and both times the balls went over his head.

In the last of the ninth, Linfield won stop Tom Niebergal ldoubled. Waritz hit third pitch over the fence fo rthe ballgame.

Loser Lewis-Clark State thus faced elimination today when it played La Verne. coach Raymon Hooker used four pitchers Thursday, lefthanders Sam Basile and Steve Jentsch, and righthanders Leotis Braniagh and Ryan Hamagami. Hamagami (5-4) got the loss.

Al Rutschman, the winning coach, said he liked the field but his pitchers didn't care for the mound which has a double pitching rubber.

"Both my pitchers had a little trouble with the mound because of the double rubber," Rutschman. "But we hit well and we have been hitting good the second half of the season."

Hooker, the LCS coach, defended the double rubber. "Everybody that has played on it up to now has liked it," he remarked. "But you can't dig a hole in front of it."

None of La Verne's pitchers said they had any trouble with the mound. The Leopards worked out Wednesday at 3 p.m. after arriving and Thursday at noon.

The Leos will be using a new leftfielder from now on. Jeff O'Connor pulled hamstring muscle in practice Tuesday. He'll be replaced by either Eric Frazier or Jesse Mendoza. Hines thinks O'Connor is through for the year.

Jim Sherman was slated to work behind the plate in the first game today. Don Syder was the choice to catch the second game.

Hines and his squad were eager to get into action.

"I think we're primed," the La Verne coach grinned. "It'll be a good series. But once again I think our pitchers depth will be the key."

Hines said he wouldn't be surprised to see Paul Zobeck on the mound for LCS today. Zobeck played right field Thursday.

Leading hitters for La Verne in the district playoffs at Quigley Park last week were Mike Alonso and Hank Merenda. Each went 4-for-10, a .400 pace.

Quarry predicts a Foreman KO

MACAFEE, N.J. (UPI) — "George Foreman will knock out Muhammad Ali within four rounds," said Jerry Quarry as he opened his training camp at the Playboy Club here Thursday.

Quarry, who will meet Joe Frazier in New York on June 17, left no doubt that he intends to fight Foreman for the title after he defeats Frazier.

"Ali is on his way out and that will be proven by Foreman. My fight with Frazier is the perfect fight for me because when I beat Joe, I will prove to the last of the doubters that this is really the new Jery Quarry."

Angels host A's

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels, coming off a pair of victories in Kansas City, tonight open a nine-game home stand against the Oakland A's.

The Angels, who have been getting strong pitching recently, send Dick Lange, 0-0, against Oakland ace Catfish Hunter, 7-3.

After three games with the A's, the Angels host Milwaukee for three games and Detroit for three more.

Pomona's Davila fights on Lopez-Chacon card

LOS ANGELES — Alberto Davila of Pomona will face Rudy Gonzales in the first of two 10-round bantamweight bouts on the same card with the Danny "Little Red" Lopez—Bobby Chacon featherweight fight tonight at the Sports Arena.

Davila, who has won 11 fights in a row since turning pro last year, faces the more experienced Gonzales who has lost only once in 18 bouts.

Both Davila and Lopez are handled by veteran fight manager Howie Steindler, who calls Davila one of the best bantamweight prospects to come along in years. "For a green fighter he thinks and boxes like an experienced fighter," says Steindler.

Like Lopez and Chacon, Davila has been working out at the Main Street Gym, which is operated by Steindler.

"I'm ready to go," Davila said. "I've been sparring five to six rounds a day for the past 12 days. Thats a lot of boxing."

The fighters were scheduled to weight-in this morning at the Olympic Auditorium. Davila was expected to tip the scales at about 118 pounds.

The Davila-Gonzalez bout will begin about 8:30 p.m., followed by another 10-round bantamweight fight between Frankie Duarte (11-0) and Japan's Tetsuro Kamakaze (17-4). The main event will begin about 10 p.m.

Lopez faces toughest test tonight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Undefeated Danny "Little Red" Lopez, born on an indian reservation at Fort Duschene, Utah, 21 years ago, faces his toughest professional test tonight when he meets once-beaten Bobby Chacon in a 12-round featherweight fight.

A capacity crowd of 16,193 is expected to watch the fight at the sports arena.

A winner by a knockout in 22 of his 23 victories, the 21-year-old younger brother of former top welterweight contender Ernie "Indian Red" Lopez thinks he will knock out his Sylmar oppononet.

"I'll keep a lot of pressure on him, he promised. "That's what I've done in all my fights."

However Chacon, whose only defeat in 24 starts was against ex-world bantamweight champ Ruben Olivares of Mexico, is a slight favorite.

"I don't mind the odds," said Lopez. "They don't bother me at all. The odds won't be doing the fighting. I will."

The taller Lopez (5-8 to 5-5) is considered the stronger one-punch fighter of the two but Chacon has fought the better caliber of opponents and is the smoother boxer. He can hit, too.

Lopez, of Alhambra, and Chacon have fought two common foes. Both fought Tury Pineda and Genzo Kurosawa.

Lopez knocked out Pineda in four rounds and Chacon accomplished the same thing against the Mexican fighter in five. Kurosawa was the first man to last 10 rounds with Lopez while Chacon stopped the Japanese featherweight in five rounds.

Howie Steindler, Lopez's manager, denied he has picked soft spots in the past for his protege.

"It's an unfair charge," he said. "We sent Danny in against good fighters. It was the way he disposed of them that made it look like he had easy opponents.

"The only thing I was concerned with when I sought opponents for Danny was the weight."

The stipulated weight for Friday night's fight is 126 pounds, the featherweight limit.

A gross gate of more than $200,000 is forecast. If that's the case, then each man will earn $50,000 since Lopez and Chacon are guaranteed 25 per cent of the gross gate.

Valley soccer players head for tournament in Austria

CLAREMONT — Eight top-flight high-school soccer stars from the Pomona Valley will be members of an 18-member soccer squad which flies to Vienna, Austria, for an international tournament June 22-25.

Claremont High soccer coach Otto Rieger Thursday told members of the Claremont Kiwanis Club of the benefits that players derived from the first tournament for a Southern California team last year in Lille, Fmce.

He also stated that the trip is expensive — $800 a person, and asked the club for its support.

Rieger reported that the following players had been chosen by coaches during a recent try-out session: Ralph Hawes, Gregg Kaufman, Jim Van Zee, Jesus Chavez, and Gesner DoCarmo of Claremont High; Ron Thomas, Pomona College; Rick Davis, Damien High; and David Segura, Ganesha High.

Rieger said that Bill Vaskis of Claremont High will aid as an assistant coach.

The squad's schedule calls for team training at Santa Barbara June 14-19, the tournament June 22-25, and a chartered bus trip through Austria, Germany, Switzerland, and the Netherlands to Amsterdam, with the squad returning July 10.

Rieger noted the rapid growth of youth soccer in Southern California and more notably the Pomona Valley. He credited the American Youth Soccer Organization for building interest in the valley.

He pointed out the fact that Claremont High has won the San Antonio League three years in a row, and was CIF runner-up the past two years.

Rieger recalled that the Southern California team placed fifth out of 15 countries last summer. He explained that three boys from Claremont High were on that squad — Jim Martinez, who is studying at Cerritos College and plans to go to UC SB next fall on a soccer scholarship; Raphael Chavez, also a Cerritos College student, and also headed for UCSB on a full scholarship; and Ron Thomas, Pomona College, who this season was all-league, all-district, and all-NAIA West Coast.

Thomas is the only repeater on the squad.

Cal Relays' 440 relay a 'biggie'

MODESTO, Calif. (UPI) — The California Relays have made the full turn.

Where they started out as just that—a series of relay races with enough other events thrown in as icing—Saturday's Modesto meet this year will include only two baton passing events but they will be big ones.

Eight strong teams shoot for the world record in the 440 relay which features a rematch of California's Pac 8 champions and Southern California.

The Golden Bears upset the Trojans last Saturday in a disputed finish. USC was declared the winner but a study of photos at the finish forced officials to reverse their decision.

California won the race in 40 seconds flat but both UCLA and the Trojans have been timed in 39.8 earlier this year. UCLA is in the Modesto field as well as Tennessee, featuring Reggie Jones, and the Philadelphia Pioneer Club, led by Ivory Crockett, who recently took the 100 dash world record to nine seconds.

Crockett, of course, will compete in the 100 here as will Jones, who has a bunch of 9.2s this year plus a wind aided 9.1.

The mile relay is the other team event on the card here. The top teams coming in are Southern California and Baylor. The Texans have a best of 3:06.6 this year while the Trojans have done 3:07.5.

The D.C. Striders, UCLA, Arizona State and the Philadelphia Pioneers also are entered in the longer relay race.

With the other relay races dropped from the program this year, there will be bigger and more representative fields in the 100 and 220 dashes.

The mile is another top event with glamour boy Tony Waldrop of North Carolina the man everyone will be shooting at. Waldrop is undefeated in nine straight subfour minute miles, including a 3:55. Danie Milan of South Africa, Wilson Waiga, Len Hilton and Paul Cummings are his chief rivals.

Pincay rides Pilot Plunk

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — As if he needed any help, jockey Laffit Pincay is riding one of the favorites in today's $16,000 Pacific Palisades Purse at Hollywood Park.

Pincay, who will pilot Plunk in today's one-mile turf race, has ridden four winners in each of the past two days, winning both feature races along the way.

On Thursday, Pincay stretched his winnings total for the meeting to 62 with victories in the fourth, seventh, eighth and ninth races. Pincay is well ahead of his 1973 pace, when he established a Hollywood Park record with 116 victories during the meeting.

Pincay booted home 3-5 favorite Fleet Peach in Thursday's feature, the $20,000 Hermosa Beach purse, covering the mile in 1:36 to nose out Lucky Spell and third-finishing Special Goddess.

"Laffit really got Fleet Peach to relax and she was really game in the stretch," said Tommy Doyle, the horse's trainer. "He never touched her. She's a funny filly to ride and he handled her just right."

Fleet Peach paid $3.20, $2.60 and $2.20, while Lucky Spell returned $3.20 and $2.60 and Special Goddess paid $2.60.

In today's feature, Pincay's mount will be pitted against Imaginative and Bold Balcony, in addition to Triggairo, El Extrano, Accohick, Phaleron and El Phenon. Plunk won six races last year, including the Alibhai Handicap at Santa Anita.

PGA's grand slam on Player's mind

MEMPHIS (UPI) — "What's on my mind is the grand slam," said little Gary Player after his blistering 65 in the first round of the $175,000 Memphis Golf Classic Thursday.

"You've got to have good weather and luck of the draw," said the man who won his second Masters this year and plans to enter the PGA, British Open and U.S. Open later. "But it's very possible."

The South African was tied with Rod Curl going into todays' second round after both broke the course record over the 7,293-yard Colonial Country Club layout by a stroke Thursday.

Jim Colbert, Bob Wynn, Larry Ziegler and Hubert Green were bunched a stroke back at 66 as nearly half of the field of 140 golfers broke par on a sunny, muggy day along the Mississippi River.

Among five players another stroke back was defending champion Dave Hill, who has won this tournament four times. Lee Trevino, who won in 1971 and '72, then finished a stroke behind hill last year, blew to a 73 Thursday with a double-bogey seven on the 18th hole.

Player and Curl, who won $50,000 in the Colonial at Fort Worth, Tex., only last week, each had seven birdies and not a single bogey. Curl birdied the last three holes after Player came in with the record.

"I started like a hot dog and finished like a pro," said the delighted Curl. "I'm playjust fine and I'm sure pleased after I scrambled early in the round."

The Memphis tournament is trapped between two designated tournaments on the PGA tour this year and such big names as Johnny Miller, Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Arnold Palmer are passing it up for next week's Kemper Open at Charlotte, N.C.

Second-year pro Bruce Ashworth of Las Vegas won't be around today despite a sparkling 68 on Thursday. He was disqualified when his playing partner, Robert Nichols, failed to sign his score card.

"It's my own fault," said Asworth, 24, "he handed it to me and I just forgot to check it. I should have noticed it. I signed it."

Services for White held

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Funeral services for Ernie White, former major league pitcher, are scheduled to be held Saturday at 3 p.m. at Floyd's Greenlawn Chapel in Spartanburg, S.C.

White, 59, who pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a World Series championship over the New York Yankees in 1942, died Wednesday following surgery to remove bone chips from his knee. The cause of death was not known.

White played in the major leagues from 1937 until 1949, finishing his career with the Braves. He served as a pitching coach for the New York Mets in 1963 and managed a Yankee farm club here in 1972.

NCAA files antitrust suit claiming AAU monopolizing

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association Thursday filed an antitrust suit in U. S. District Court against the Amateur Athletic Union, charging the AAU with exercising a monopoly.

The suit stems from the AAU's refusal to sanction foreign athletes to participate in an NCAA track meet to be held in suburban Mount Prospect June 8.

The NCAA, in its suit, charged that the AAU has refused to sanction the meet because of the NCAA's recent decision to permit athletes to retain their amateur status in one sport though they participate professionally in another.

Foreign amateur athletes may not participate in sporting events in this country unless they are sanctioned to participate by the AAU.

The Northern Illinois Track Coaches Association and the U.S. Track and Field Federation joined the NCAA as plaintiffs in the suit.

The AAU has permitted foreign athletes to participate in the National Junior Championships, to be held in Mount Prospect, for the past two years. But this year, the AAU said in a letter that it would not allow foreign athletes to participate.

The suit said the AAU refused to invite foreign athletes to the Mount Prospect meet because it did not want them to compete with "tainted athletes."

The term was apparently a reference to Larry Jones, a trackman who ran in a Texas meet despite having signed a contract to play with the New York Giants of the National Football League. He also was to participate in the Mount Prospect meet.

The NCAA suit charged the AAU with monopolizing non professional athletics and with attempting to strengthen its monopoly. It also charged the AAU with unlawful restraint of trade and with unlawful and malicious interference in the Mount Prospect track meet.

An attorney for the NCAA. He said the co-plaintiffs were seeking triple damages from the AAU for its actions regarding the tournament. Damages were to be determined by the court.

FORT COLLINS, COLO. — Steve Pivac of Pomona has signed a national letter-of-intent to attend Colorado State University on a wrestling scholarship, according to Athletic Director Perry C. Moore.

A Mt. San Antonio College 118-pounder, Pivac compiled a 52-2 record the past two seasons while winning six championships, including the 1973 Junior World Greco-Roman title.

The team's captain the past two years. Pivac is considered "a super dedicated and aggressive wrestler" by Ram coach Jim Kinyon, who guided CSU to the Western Athletic Conference title this winter.

In addition to the league championship, the Rams compiled a 10-4 dual match record in Kinyon's second-year at CSU. Pivac is the seventh wrestler to sign with CSU for the 1974-75 season.

Masters Meet tonight

CIF crowns kings

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

NORWALK — The real kings in Southern California high school track will be crowned tonight.

And a couple of those may come out of the Pomona Valley.

A total of 15 individuals and two relay teams from the valley will be competing in the CIF's Masters Meet tonight at Cerritos College. The running events are scheduled to begin at 7:15 p.m.

But actually only a small handful of those 15 have a good shot at qualifying for next weekend's State Meet in Bakersfield.

And maybe only one or two will win CIF titles.

One of the more interesting races tonight, as far as valley entrants are concerned, will be the varsity half mile run.

Upland High's Steve Scott won the CIF 3-A championship last weekend at Cerritos, running the 880 in 1:53.8. Finishing second in that race was Ganesha's Glen Harter, who ran a 1:54.4 for the runnerup spot.

In order to qualify for the State Meet, the two San Antonio League competitors are going to have to better their times by two seconds tonight.

Three half milers from the 4-A ran better times than Scott's in the 4-A finals last weekend.

Tom Lloy of Edison High is the favorite in that race after claiming the 4-A title in 1:52.2. And Burbank's John Musich had to settle for No. 2 in that race after running an identical time of 1:52.2.

Mission Viejo's Jon Cook was third in 1:53.5. Then comes Scott's and Harter's times.

There is a slight chance that either Scott or Harter could take a CIF title in the 880, but it's going to take a superior effort by both.

Ganesha's Lloyd Jones, however, does have a realistic shot at winning the CIF championship in the frosh-soph 70 high hurdles.

The lanky sophomore won the CIF 3-A title last weekend in a record-breaking 8.7 seconds. His teammate Frank Stiger finished second in the same time in that race.

Jones' toughest competition should come from Stiger and Fontana's Paul Wilson, who won the 4-A title in also 8.7 seconds.

But other than Scott, Harter, Jones and Stiger, it doesn't look like the valley will be well represented in the final CIF tallies.

There will be a total of five varsity athletes from the valley competing tonight, along with two relay teams.

Chino High sophomore Jayson Law will be competing in the 220, where he finished third in 22.0 at the CIF 3-A finals last week. His fifth place in the 100 failed to qualify him for the Masters in that event.

San Dimas' Dan Hitchens will be entered in the 440, where he finished second in the 2-A finals. He'll be quite a longshot for a qualifying spot for State. The Saints' senior was clocked in 49.6, but there are at least a half a dozen times better than his.

He will, however, bring to an end a battle with Gladstone's Calvin Dupleasis, one of Hacienda League competitors. Dupleasis won the 2-A 440 title in 49.1.

Ontario Long jumper Marcus Jennings must really improve his 22-3½ effort in order to qualify for next week's final meet of the year. He has recorded a jump of 22-10 this season, and that just might put him in the competition.

Montclair's quarter mile relay team and Chino's mile relay quartet will see action tonight, also. The Montclair foursome includes Joe Speer, Filbert Gonzales, Larry Milton and Jerard Bryant. Chino's legs will be Glen Davis, Steve Jacketti, Law and Don Cossey.

After Jones completes his 70 high hurdle run on the frosh-soph level, he'll try his knockout punch a little later in the evening when he competes in the 120 lows.

The Ganesha star qualified for tonight's action in the lows with a third-place finish in the 3-A finals, clocking a time of 13.6 seconds.

Jim Donaldson of Montclair will be running in the frosh-soph 100 yard dash, but his 10.0 doesn't look like it'll be good enough for a title.

San Dimas' Mike Bailous, who set a CIF frosh-soph record in the 440 last weekend in the 2-A finals, will have some stiff competition tonight. He won the 2-A title with a 51.4 clocking, but there were three times better than his in the other two divisions.

There will be two valley competitors in the frosh-soph two mile run. Montclair's Mike Roza and Pomona's Barry Boettcher will be among the massive distance field.

Garey's Stan Webster has a reasonable shot at the frosh-soph long jump. The Viking sophomore leaped 22-feet, 1-inch to win the 3-A title, but he'll have to go over 23 feet to win it.

Other frosh-soph competitors will be Ganesh's James Bell in the long jump, Ontraio's Jerold Burleson in the shot put and Ganesha's Jim Lovett in the shot put.

Cleveland's Perry has A.L. baffled

By United Press International

Gaylord Perry is doing some psyche job on the American League.

Perry, accused on numerous occasions over the years of throwing an illegal pitch but never caught in the act, has had AL batters guessing about his pitches more than ever this year despite having done away with all the gyrations he used to go through on the mound.

The 35-year-old right-hander had the Baltimore Orioles completely baffled Thursday night when he tossed a three-hitter for his seventh straight victory while pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 2-0 triumph.

"I've cut out the gyrations completely. It gives the umpires ideas," said Perry, referring to the new rule this season which leaves it up to the umpire's discretion whether or not a pitcher is throwing an illegal pitch. "But I hope the hitters think that I'm doing something. What I might be doing better this year than last is setting the hitters up better."

Perry, who bested 1973 Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer in the pitchers' duel, recorded his 34th career shutout and received high praise from his catcher, Dave Duncan, as well as Baltimore's Tommy Davis.

"He's so good I can't believe it," said Duncan. "Perry doesn't make mistakes and he's never on the defensive as a pitcher. I've never caught a pitcher who can compare to him. He's got a psychological advantage over hitters because they think he's throwing something that he doesn't."

Davis, who has probably faced Perry more than any other batter over the last decade, feels Perry has improved with age.

"I think I was 0-for-73 against Perry last year," quipped Davis. "He's one of the best pitchers in baseball. He's gotten much better. He has the batters fooled. He's got them all psyched out."

While it was another impressive win for Perry, it was a disappointing loss for Palmer, who has now dropped five in a row. Both runs off Palmer were unearned as a result of errors by shortstop Mark Belanger and leftfielder Al Bumbry.

In the only other scheduled AL games, Chicago trimmed Texas 9-6, California beat Kansas City 3-1 and Milwaukee downed Detroit 7-3.

White Sox 9, Rangers 6

Carlos May drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly to spark the White Sox' triumph. Skip Pitlock worked five innings in relief to gain his first AL win and also became the first pitcher in the league to bat this season when he reached base on an error in the sixth. Jeff Burroughs homered for Texas.

Brewers 7, Tigers 3

George Scott and Bob Hansen each drove in a pair of runs to back the six-hit pitching of Jim Slaton in the Brewers' triumph. Scott tripled home a run in the seventh inning and walked with the bases loaded in the eighth while Hansen singled home two runs in the first.

Tom Seaver poses with Cy Young Award

...now he gets rained out

But then again it hasn't been as good a season as Seaver had planned for the Mets.

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the kind of a season it's been for Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' $172,000-a-year pitcher:

It rained on him even on the day when he received the National League's Cy Young Award for his 19-10 performance in 1973.

"I guess it just wasn't an appropriate day for it," said Seaver after Thursday's game between the Mets and Chicago Cubs was rained out. "You could say the arrangements could have been better."

Seaver, who has a 2-4 record and a 3.74 earned run average this season, was supposed to receive the Cy Young Award from baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn before the game. The Mets had set up a ceremony before the game but the rain which started early in the morning continued until shortly after 3 pm when the game was postponed.

Instead of receiving the award from Kuhn in front of adoring Met fans, Seaver accepted it in the dugout in the presence of a half dozen photographers and with perhaps 3,000 rain-drenched spectators on hand.

It wasn't as good a day as the Mets had planned for Seaver.

Expos call-up righthander

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos optioned lefthander Balor Moore to their Memphis farm club in the International League Thursday and promoted righthander Dennis Blair from Memphis to the Expos.

Blair is in his first season of professional baseball.

Post 78 holds on to nip Tri-City, 5-4

ALTA LOMA — Claremont Post 78 jumped out to a 5-0 lead and then held on to edge Tri-City 5-4 in the only local American Legion baseball action Thursday afternoon.

The Cardinals, now 4-1 on the young season, staked freshman starter Paul Sokolowski to a three run cushion after three frames.

Catcher Ken MacLeod singled home a pair of first inning runs as Todd Ervin reached on an error and stole second. Tony Janusz added an infield single.

Catcher Ken MacLeod singled home a pair of first inning runs as Tod Ervin led things off by reaching first on an error, stealing second and moving to third on a throwing error. Tony Janusz beat an infield nubber and swiped second and both scored on the hit.

Chris Tracey drove in the Card third inning run after Ervin had singled and stole second base.

Jack Helber's club made it 5-0 with a pair of runs in the fifth as Tracey got aboard on a bunt single and MacLeod followed with his second hit of the game. Rich Tullis looped a single to center to load the bases and Dave Aguilera delivered what turned out to be the winning hit with a two-run single to right field.

Sokolowski (1-0) went four frames allowing just one walk and four hits before giving way to Mil Pompa.

Pompa was immediately roughed up for a run in the fifth and three more in the sixth when Tri City bunched together four hits, a walk, and a fileder's choice.

John Huddleston came in to get the final two outs of the sixth on ground balls and blanked the hosts in the seventh to pick up his first save of the year.

Tracey, MacLeod and Aguilera all collected two hits each. Tracey, off to a torrid start, had eight hits in 19 at-bats for a .421 average.

"The guys are really sticking together this year," said Helber. "We looked great defensively today . . . it's the third straight errorless game I think. The guys are throwing to the right bases, hitting well, and helping each other out.

Helber has been pleased with the scheduling this year having already played five games with four more before the league season begins June 1st.

The Cards travel to Rowland High School Saturday for a 2 p.m. game with Rowland Heights. Either John Huddleston (2-0 or Harry Brown (1-0 will get the call.

Northwest Big Leaguers win

POMONA — The Northwest Big League baseball team handed Diamond Bar its first loss of the young season Wednesday night, 5-3.

Cleve Porter won his second game on the mound for Northwest, while Ken Dudley collected two hits in the winning cause.

Northwest is now 2-1 in Big League play, while Diamond Bar sports the same record after its initial defeat.

Montreal slips through fog, 5-4

By United Press International

On a clear day—and even on a foggy night—the Montreal Expos can see their first pennant.

Willie Davis, who can lose fly balls on the sunniest of days (just ask Sandy Koufax), handed the Pittsburgh Pirates two runs Thursday night when he lost a fly ball in the fog shrouded Jarry Park.

The fog was so bad the umpires even held up the game for 56 minutes in the sixth inning.

But once it swirled away, the Expos went on to record a 5-4 triumph over the Pirates that moved them within 1½ games of idle Philadelphia in the National League East. The Expos are shooting to become the first of the 1969 expansion teams to win a division crown.

Davis, who came to the Expos from the Dodgers in the controversial Mike Marshall trade (it could be, as the cliche goes, the trade that helps both clubs), and Barry Foote each drove in two runs for Montreal to hand Steve Rogers his seventh win.

Davis, who fly ball muffs in the second game of the 1966 World Series cost Hall of Famer Koufax a defeat in the last game he ever pitched, couldn't be blamed this time because Al Oliver's routine fly got lost in the fog and fell for a run-scoring triple. The umpires then delayed the game for almost an hour and after the delay, Rogers wild pitched Oliver home.

Rogers then blanked the Pirates until the ninth when Ed Kirkpatrick singled and Oliver doubled. Chuck Taylor came on to get the save although Willie Stargell singled in a run and the last run scored on a double play.

"It's a tough position to be in when you have a game delayed the way it was tonight by fog," Rogers said. "It threw off my timing but things worked out. We knew from the beginning of the season that this team could put it altogether and go all the way."

Davis, who had a single and a sacrifice fly, has now hit safely in 11 straight games.

"I'd like to keep it going and shoot for 70 games," he said. "Without a doubt, everyone knows that this team has a shot at the pennant. We have the feeling after playing only 33 games. I'm really happy I made that move and came to Montreal."

In the other games, San Francisco downed Los Angeles 7-6 and San Diego outlasted Cincinnati 5-4 in 13 innings. Chicago at New York was rained out.

Padres 5, Reds 4

Derrel Thomas scored the tying run in the 12th inning and then drove in the deciding run with a sacrifice fly in the 13th as San Diego outlasted Cincinnati. The Reds seemed to have wrapped up the game with a run in the top of the 12th but San Diego tied it in the bottom of the inning when Fred Kendall's grounder went through Dan Driessen's legs as Thomas scored from third. The Reds collected 18 hits but stranded 20 runners, 12 in the first six innings.

Progress-Bulletin Home and Garden

Entertainment spot

By STEVE ELLINGSON

When is a gazebo more than just a gazebo? Well, Webster defines it as a "pavilion or summerhouse". However, most people think of a gazebo as a Victorian-style garden shelter with open lattice sides, where you can sit and chat with friends on a summer afternoon.

But we felt it was time to modernize this delightful structure and expand its use to fit today's backyard. Our version even features a firepit to cook hot dogs or warm you on a chilly evening . . . while you chat with friends.

There just isn't a better way to rejuvenate a tired old yard and give it a focal point. Our entertainment gazebo is pictured here with Christine Surma, "the only actress-auctioneer in the world'. Of course, she's not auctioning it off but you can bet it will add big dollars to the resale value of any home.

There are 20 pictures and thorough instructions to guide you on each step of this project. A detailed list of materials shows exactly what you'll need, from shingles to firepit bricks. An optional design for a more elaborate barbeque pit, complete with counters, is included. Weather-resistant western woods, like red cedar or douglas fir are ideal for this structure. The whole entertainment center can be built at ground level or with a raised wood deck.

To obtain Plan No. 550 for the entertainment gazebo, send $2.25 (includes postage & handling). For airmail, send $2.50 by cash, check or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Pomona Progress Bulletin Pattern Dept., P. O. Box 2383 Van Nuys, CA 91409.

How to have a cool home, save energy

NEW YORK — A little pre-summer planning can keep your home cooler in the summer and save energy usage by your air conditioning.

Shading all widows exposed to direct sunlight can cut cooling costs 25 to 30 per cent, according to the current issue of American Home. Morning sun can pour just as much searing heat into your home through unshaded windows as afternoon sun, the articles notes.

Outdoor shading devices on windows keep out twice as much solar heat as interior shades, states the magazine. Where planting shade trees is impractical, consider building a solid fence to shield east and west windows from low-angle sun. Or put up awnings or shutters.

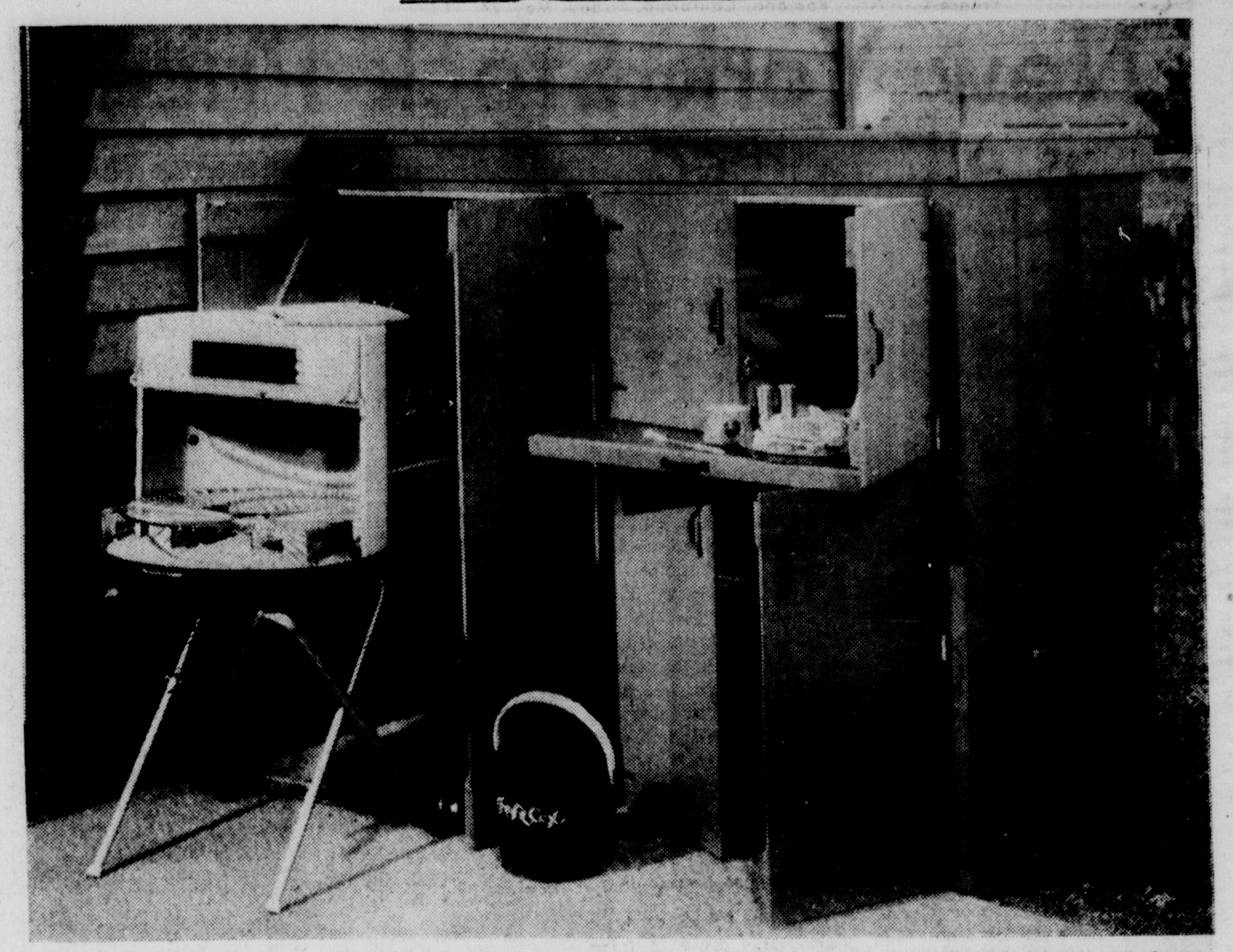
Attics should be ventilated to prevent heat buildup — which can reach 150 degrees on a very hot day. On such days even the best insulation is ineffective unless the attic is well ventilated. The article suggests large air louvers at each gable end of the attic to combat the problem.

Heat from your kitchen range and oven can overload your air conditioner and needlessly raise energy expense, states American Home. Prevent this by installing an exhaust fan by the range to get cooking heat and fumes outdoors before they can spread to other parts of the house.

Clothes dryers spew huge quantities of heat and water vapor which put an enormous extra load on your cooling system unless the dryer is vented to the outside. The articles notes that the dryer should be vented even if it is in the basement or other non-airconditioned part of the house.

Good ice fishing

One of the best spots for winter ice fishing is Lake Simcoe in Ontario, Canada, where each year more than 4,000 fish hunts may be seen on the frozen lake.



COOKING CENTER — Compact "grill garage" stores outdoor gear ready for use in a 3x6-foot unit only four feet, seven inches tall. Plans are from Western Wood Products, Yeon Bldg., Portland.

Cookout center stows the grill

The tranquility of many outdoor dinners is doomed from the start because the cook has to scurry around locating charcoal, starter, tools and other supplies before the first burger can go on the grill.

A put-it-all-totgether solution, dubbed the Grill Garage, was designed by a Portland, Or., architect for use at his own home to help insure the pleasant progress of cookout meals.

The weatherproof 3x6 foot unit stands four feet, seven inches tall, with room to store a barbecue on wheels in the left side and charcoal and other supplies in the lower half of the right side.

Shelf helps chef

A pull-out workshelf separating the right side is made of aluminum-clad quarter-inch plywood for easy cleaning. The top half of this side will hold a hibachi or can be used as additional work space while cooking.

The roof is made of the same material as the shelf and sloped back nearly an inch for drainage. The floor of the unit is foot-square concrete patio blocks set on leveled, well-drained ground.

Basic framing of the storage structure can be 2x4-inch western fir, pine or other locally available lumber, with three vertical sections tied together with horizontal members.

Cedar covers sides

After roof and shelves are in place, ½x3½-inch tongue and groove or flush joint western cedar siding is blind nailed to the front and sides. Three sets of doors are fabricated for the front by nailing siding to Z-braces.

The unit can be free-standing or attached to the house. Its design allows it to serve other uses, such as storing lawnmower, garden cart, folding chairs or other outdoor equipment.

Plans for the Grill Garage are available for 25 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. P-9, Yeon Building, Portland, Or. 97204.

Captive bears older

The black bear can live twice as long in captivity as it can in the woods—30 years if well cared for, compared to a 12 to 15-year life span in the wild.

Herbs at hand and underfoot

This is the year when most everyone is paying attention to their own herb garden. Not only can one derive culinary miracles but also there's pleasure in pinching and sniffing them when you pass through the garden.

A carpet of wooly thyme on or about stepping stones or encroaching on a garden path is something you can savor every time you crush it underfoot. A shrub of Rosemary near the back entrance is available for your kitchen needs and also for your pinching pleasure. Likewise a planting of sage.

Then there is the herb which can be planted to please the family cat. This would be nepeta or catnip, a dense gray cover for open ground, attractive to look at and so attractive to cats.

Be sure to check with a local member of the California Association of Nurserymen where you can find a good number of these aromatic standbys offered in small pots.

After you have made your selection, choose a place near the kitchen, and set out plants from the local nursery. The pleasures of selecting herbs from your own garden for that very special bit of culinary art will be great. A strawberry jar will provide a portable herb garden.

Be sure to include, in addition to the above, tarragon, basil, majoram, chives, mint, parsley, savory and dill. The more the merrier.

Along with your home grown vegetables, the addition of herbs in your garden will afford the family new taste sensations every week.

Repair lawn furniture? be sure it's worth it

CHICAGO (NFS) — The coming of spring brings out the robins, the crocuses, and the lawn furniture. And while nature takes care of the first two, it's up to outdoor living fanciers to make sure that the lawn furniture is up to snuff.

Some pieces may need repairs that will take time and possibly require special material. Others may have outlived their usefulness altogether and need to be replaced.

"Be practical in making these decisions," urges Mary Ann Wills, decorating consultant to Burwood Products Company, Traverse City, Mich., maker of decorative accessories and home furnishings.

"It may be well worth the effort to replace the canvas on a chair with a sturdy frame or put new, better quality webbing on an old chaise you especially like," she observed.

"But why risk hanging onto things like a folding chair that folds when it shouldn't, a table that wobbles precariously under a tray of drinks, or any piece that rusts every time it rains?"

Definitely worth considering, if you're in the market for new furniture this year, are pieces molded of sturdy, weather - resistant polymers. For example, Burwood has developed molded occasional tables in several useful sizes and in two distinctive styles —Andean and Wicker-East— that are equally at home in an indoor or outdoor setting.

Andean tables, finished in sophisticated black, simulate the effect of hand-hammered wrought iron frames with tops of inlaid slate squares. The Wicker-East group, available in a choice of white or several decorator colors, recaptures the romantic mood of a Victorian veranda with its painted wicker furniture.

Both styles have textured tops that resist stains and scratches. And, since color is molded in there's no worry about fading or chipping. Sizes include 16 by 16 by 16-inch, 16 by 16 by 21 inches high, 20 by 28 by 21 inches high, and 24 by 24 by 16 inches high.

A 20 by 28 by 16-inch high cocktail table is also featured in the Wicker-East collection, which comes in a choice of white, black, oriental red, House & Garden sun yellow and parrot green.

"Today's indoor-outdoor furniture makes especially good sense where limited storage space is a problem," Miss Wills noted, "since it doesn't have to be put away at summer's end."

Burwood's versatile molded tables now available in department, furniture and gift stores, are economically priced from around $12.95 to $27.95 depending on style and size.

Heartbeat for Willie is pulsing movie score

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "I grew up in Watts," says Willie Hutch, "so I know the heartbeat of the people."

And he goes on to explain the hearbeat of the people, as he sees it. He was talking about the new movie, "Foxy Brown," Hutch, one of the bright young musicians of the moment, wrote the score for that one.

"What the public wants," he says, "is exciting movies and the music has to be exciting, too. Like in 'Foxy Brown,' there's a castration and a girl cut and all that sort of thing. The audience is on the edge of its seats all the time."

Hutch's music is exciting music, to go along with that dandy on-screen action. Maybe he misinterprets why the audience is on the edge of their seats. It may be excitement. But it may be because they're getting ready to leave.

Whatever you think of the movie, Hutch is here to stay. He's a home product, although he did spend some years in Dallas as a boy. He studied everything in school—from art to pole vaulting—but never did study music. He calls himself a "woodshed" musician, meaning he picked things up here and there and practiced in the woodshed.

He says one problem with black films today is that all the profits go into white pockets. That, of course, is because currently there aren't enough black people financially able to finance and produce films. That will change. He may help change it—he's been asked to coproduce a movie, based on a script he's writing. One thing for sure: it will have exciting music behind it.

Still on the subject of movie music, Fred and Meg Karlin believe that it's in a great period. The Karlins write songs for movies, so they should know.

Their point is that, probably more than ever before, lyrics for movie songs are free. Almost anything goes now. There are very few taboos on subject matter and words.

The music itself is free, too, but not uninhibited. Fred Karlin says movie melody went through a period of adjustment, getting acquainted with movies' "new freedom," and has, he says, settled down.

"Today," he says, "movie music is a happy marriage between traditionalism and anything goes."

At the moment, they're scoring the new Stacy Keach film, "Gravy Train." They've written a song for it called "The Next Time Around," which they're particularly proud of. Meg, the lyricist of the team, says she'll only write words to songs if she feels strongly about the ideas. She refuses to do a lyric just to make a title song.

At the moment, their biggest problem is moving. Their house has been sold and they have to move within five weeks. And they have to find a huge place, to house themselves, their studio, their collection of old records and sheet music. And they can't be too close to neighbors. Such a house isn't easy to find.

WILLIE HUTCH

Richardson found tapes 'depressing'

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Former U.S. attorney general Elliot Richardson finds the transcripts of the Watergate related tapes released by the President "very depressing."

"They were very depressing because the President and his close associates engaged in endless discussion ... on how to escape the truth from moving down to them," he said here. "It seems to represent a real tradedy for the nation."

Richardso said that the President and his top advisers should have pursued the matter with the goal of achieving "maximum justice and maximum integrity" as rapidly as possble.

Story of two telegrams

Dinah Shore gets an Emmy and the axe

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dinah Shore is in a state of suspended disbelief, having been fired by NBC television for having one of the most highly rated daytime shows on the air.

Only a week ago, Dinah won an Emmy award for the best hostess in a talk, service or variety series.

The blonde songbird was notified last Thursday by telegram that she had won the coveted statuette for excellence. Three hours later, she received another telegram. This one was from NBC.

It congratulated Dinah on winning the Emmy, then went on to say, "I'm sorry the exigencies of business require us to drop your show. We hope we can work together again."

It was signed by network vice president Larry White.

After being under contract to NBC since 1951, Dinah was understandably shook up. She'd just copped the top prize, had excellent ratings and satisfied sponsors. She was also out in the cold.

Dinah's first reaction was a good laugh. She thought the second telegram was a gag

One of her representatives checked the network in disbelief. He was told the show, "Dinah's Place," was derricked because it didn't draw an audience for the game shows which followed.

"Talk about surprises," Dinah said, laughing. "Getting fired like that is really instant humble.

"I won't go around with my head too high ever again. At first I was going to send a wire to Larry White saying some dummy had sent me a telegram as a joke and signed his name. But I thought better of it."

Dinah was in good spirits although still shocked by the suddenness of the NBC action. She'd heard no rumors, had no warning.

"It seems I've been with NBC all my life," she said. "And after almost four years with this show I thought we were doing well. The ratings were high."

Not high enough, according to a spokesman for NBC, who said Dinah's program had started with a good rating but didn't build much higher during the years.

"Our first three shows in the morning are all being replaced," the NBC man said. "Well miss Dinah. She's a lovely lady."

Dinah has already prerecorded the remainder of her shows for the season, last of which will be aired July 29.

By that time, however, Dinah is almost sure to make an announcement that she has gone into syndication with her series, a prospect that may make her the most wealthy woman in television history.

"All my sponsors are going to stay with me," she said. "And there are other sponsors waitisg in line. They told me they bought my show, not the time slot on NBC. So that's very gratifying.

"I guess I should be proud my audience watched my show, then tuned out instead of sitting around all morning watching game shows."

LIGHTING UP — Petr Kowalski lights Sari Gacsaly's cigar in a scene from the Chaffey College production of "The Visit." The Frederich Durrenmatt drama will be presented in the Little Theater at 8 p.m. next Friday and Saturday and the following weekend.

'The Visit'

Chaffey College to stage prize play by Durrenmatt

ALTA LOMA — The Chaffey College Theater Arts Department will present Frederich Durrenmatts drama, "The Visit," in the Little Theater at 8 p.m. next Friday and Saturday and the following weekend.

The play tells of a wealthy woman's return to her small home town where she was ostracized at the age of 17 for bearing an illegitimate child. Her return is motivated by a desire to help the impoverished village with her vast fortune and to get revenge on the man who betrayed her.

"The play is an extremely powerful venture into the world of love and hate," says director C. A. Sheppard. "It is solid with characters so real and action so concentrated that it crests and breaks like a great wave with a stunning climax."

"The Visit" was adapted by Maurice Valency. It won the New York Drama Critics Award as the Best Play of the 1958-59 season.

The cast for the Chaffey production is headed by Sari Gacsaly as the rich woman and Petr Kowalski, the target of her revenge.

In support roles are David Golbeck, Hubert Smith, Gary Reinschmidt, Denise Damico, Kim Collings, Rex Melton, Greg Hinrichsen and Shiela Pratt.

In addition to taking the part of the village pastor, Hinrichsen is designing the set. The technical director is Michale Noll; the costumer, Mary Lou Waldrop.

Completing the cast are Robert J. Miller, Renald Mulenax, Tahnee Gantt, Stephan Fowler, Leslie Abernathy, John Mena Jr., Curtiss Bradford, Steve Kowalski, Mike Genoff and Nancy Kingsley.

Reservations are now available at the box office at $1 or by calling 987-1745.

Casino gambling in N.J. on referendum

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — The question of whether New Jersey will bring casino gambling to the state will be decided in a referendum on the November ballot.

A resolution calling for the voters to decide whether Atlantic City will become "Las Vegas East" was approved in the Senate this week by a 24-14 vote, the exact number needed to pass.

If the voters approve the referendum, the legislature will draft a bill to make New Jersey the second state in the union with casino gambling. Under the proposal, the state would operate the casinos.

Jam session scheduled by SPDJ

WEST COVINA — The Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz will hold its monthly six-hour jam session at the Elks Lodge, 841 W. Merced Ave. starting at 2 p.m. Sunday.

SPDJ meetings are open to the public. Admission is $1. Refreshments are available.

A seven-man band will represent the local club at the Sacramento Jazz Jubilee today through Monday. Members are Roger Stillman, bass; Joe Toomey, trumpet; Bob Reitmeier, clarinet; Mike Fenberg, drums; Chuck Thomas, saxophone; Peter Stickrey, piano, and Art Bullock, trombone.

On June 30 SPDJ will take part in the annual Catalina Jazz Jamboree. Various groups will play on the boat trip over and back and perform in the afternoon jam session at the casino at Avalon.

He has toured and recorded with Eric Clapton, Leon Russell, Dave Mason and Rita Collidge. Bramlett appears in the theater 6, 8 and 9:30 tonight.

Entrance to the John Wayne Theater is included in Knott's admission price.

Knott's Wild Animal Follies opens its summer-long stay this week in the John Wayne Theater. The muscial show features wild animals daily at 1 and 3 p.m. throughout the summer.

Also opening this week, Zoltan's Gypsy Puppets offers fun for children daily in the Gypsy Camp.

ANAHEIM — Lawrence Welk, with his orchestra and the cast of his television show, will give his first Southern California concert at the Anaheim Convention Center at 7:30 p.m. next Friday.

Tickets at $7 and $5 are on sale at the box office and at Liberty and Mutual agencies.

Nancy Kelly

Daughter brings mother back to showbiz

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Mostly because 17-year-old Kelly Caro has become "a smashing person," one of Hollywood's old stars has returned to action.

Kelly Caro's mother is Nancy Kelly, long a leading Hollywood lady. For the last several years, Nancy hasn't done much acting. She hasn't done much of anything, except raise Kelly.

"But now," she says, "I think maybe the time has come to do some television."

When she and her husband, Warren Caro, were divorced, she decided she had to — and wanted to — devote her time to brining Kelly along. She feels that it would have been unfair to her daughter to have both parents absent. So she elected to stay home.

"I was always there," Nancy says, "and it paid off. Kelly is a smashing person. She wants to be an actress and I think she's going to make it."

Last Jan. 7 was Kelly's 17th birthday. By coincidence, that night they watched a TV showing of one of Nancy's old movies, "Stanley and Livingstone."

"I suddenly realized," Nancy says, "that I was only 17 — Kelly's age — when I made that movie. Needless to say, I went to bed that night with my make-up on."

Anyhow, what with one thing and another, Nancy Kelly has decided to go to work again. Over the years, she's had many offers but turned them all down. Now, however, she's back and back in a big way. She's shot a pilot movie for Warner Brox., something called "The Imposter."

"The Imposter" has Paul Hecht playing an actor who is a master at impersonation. Nancy plays the owner of a theater who tutors him in his various guises and disguises.

By a coincidence, she shot it at the same studio — Warner Bros. — where she made her last movie, "The Bad Seed." She won an Oscar nomination for that role but she thinks she might have won the award itself had she listened to the director, Mervyn LeRoy.

"I wanted to do the role just as I had done it on Broadway," she says. "LeRoy tried to tell me to change it for the movie and I should have listened more to him. But I kept telling him how to do it."

When the picture was over, LeRoy gave her a charm bracelet, with miniature replicas of all the Hollywood movie union membership cards. It was to symbolize her "expertise" in every phase of the movie business, a bit of sarcasm she appreciated.

Impeachment hearings to get tasteful coverage

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The three major television networks are attempting to keep live coverage of the House hearings on the question of the impeachment of President Nixon as tasteful as possible.

ABC, CBS and NBC, which will rotate live coverage of the public sessions of the House Judiciary Committee investigation, already have been criticized for their decision to broadcast the inquiry.

Some critics say the hearings will become a circus if TV cameras are turned on. Others say it will demoralize the nation and wash dirty laundry before the world. Still others say it unfortunately will become the ultimate soap opera.

"Television cannot control whether or not the hearings become a circus," said William Sheehan, senior vice president for ABC News. "The people inside the meeting will decide the outcome."

Live coverage of the public sessions was expected to begin Tuesday, but the committee has not completed its exceutive sessions yet.

This is the second time in the history of the United States that a president has been involved in such legal proceedings. President Andrew Johnson was impeached after the Civil War, the era of pen and pad journalism. Television, which has never covered such an event, now is presented with this task and is attempting to respond in a proper fashion.

The principle effort on the part of the networks will be to keep technicians and equipment operating inside the House meeting room as unobtrusive as possible. They have assigned ABC to handle pool coverge for the first two weeks of the public sessions. CBS will follow and then NBC.

When a network is assigned pool coverage it will use all its equipment and technicians and send its transmissions along telephone lines for use by the others networks and subscribers to the pool. As noted by Robert Siegenthaler, ABC senior producer special events, the pooling arrangement keeps the amount of equipment and personnel at a minimum during an event.

Siegenthaler, who handled the pool for President Nixon's trip to China, will be responsible for the first two weeks of the live coverage.

"Our main approach," he said. "will be to be as unobtrusive as possible. We want to cover the hearings and not be a part of it."

One of the ways network camera crews will cover the hearings is from a specially built platform outside the hearing room. The cameras will cover the committee meeting through a section of window that has been removed.

Siegenthaler said two cameras will be used on the enclosed, air-conditioned platform and two others will be used in the back of the room. Three cameras, all in full view, were used during the Senate Watergate hearings.

Siegenthaler said a special lighting system has been designed to rid the room of the normally harsh TV lights.

He said a 42-foot light bar has been built which will hang from five cables attached to the two-story high ceiling. The lights attached from the bar will diffuse the lighting, reducing glare and heat.

"In view of the historic importance of this event," Siegenthaler said, "we trying to keep out of everbody's way."

DIAGNOSTIC TEST RETURNS!
DUE TO POPULAR DEMAND WE HAVE DECIDED TO AGAIN DO SOMETHING NO OTHER DEALER HAS DONE. TAKEN OUR USED CARS TO AN INDEPENDENT LAB TESTING STATION (AUTO LAB DIAGNOSTIC CENTER POMONA, ONTARIO AREA) FOR MILEAGE PERFORMANCE AND EMMISION CONTROL CHECK & CERTIFYING SPEEDOMETERS. WE HAVE PLACED ON THE WINDOWS OF THE USED CARS A COMPLETE MILEAGE AND EMMISION REPORT FOR YOUR INSPECTION. WE HOPE THIS WILL SHED SOME LIGHT ON LUXURY CAR vs THE COMPACT CAR, ESPECIALLY WITH THE NEW SPEED LAWS.
